Jimmy Lyons faces final jazz fest

SADNESS MIXES with excitement at Fest Central as everyone awaits Friday evening's kick-off of the 34th annual Monterey Jazz Festival. Usual place: the fairgrounds.

The talent lineup's most promising. Concurrently, Jimmy Lyons faces his final year as MJF's general manager — not an ecstatic or easy change.

In an exclusive interview with John Detro, Jimmy calls the fest his "baby" and adds: "I feel like my baby has been stolen from me." For the full story, check out Detro's Jazz Tides column in today's edition.

Vision 2016: Fielding the dreams of Carmelites

By DAVID LELAND

THE REV. Martin Luther King, Jr. had one, so does the Carmel 2016 Committee. Thus far, however, the 15-member committee has received little or no visionary input from area residents and merchants. Not to worry, the committee will provide the perfect venue to dream during the city's upcoming 75th birthday bash next month.

"By working together we can have a program that we can realize all the dreams of Carmel," says 2016 chairman Neal Kruse. "We want to enhance and preserve our natural environment."

The 2016 Committee is inviting interested people to check out its exhibition from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 5, in the Chapman Room at Sunset Cultural Center. Admission is free and refreshments will be served.

"We have all kinds of ideas," says Ann Beckett, who has served on the committee since its inception last February.

The exhibit will offer the committee's reveries for Carmel, as well as drawings from Carmel River School students on what they believe the city will be like many years from now.

All those visiting the show will be given a postcard to return asking what they think is important to ensure Carmel's future.

The committee was appointed by the Carmel City Council to come up with a the city has scheduled Dec. 10 to receive the committee's input.

Meeting bi-monthly, the committee first decided to take a look around Carmel and do a logical progression as to where things could end up.

"We used our nightmares to get to our dreams," explains committee member Art Young.

A sampling of members' distress: street addresses; stop lights; sidewalks in the residential district; no tree canopy; and so many cars downtown that no self-respecting pedestrian would venture near the place.

"You look at what we are doing now and see if that will make the dream come true," says Kruse, adding that the committee has compiled enough information to fill a 200-page document.

Ideas being bandied about include a pedestrian city, where cars are relegated to the outer limits.

"Our ideal situation is a car-less place," Young said. "We want a city of beautiful trees and gardens."

'By working together we can have a program that we can realize all the dreams of Carmel. We want to enhance and preserve our natural environment.'

Neal Kruse

Beckett added that the committee is still trying to be realistic.

"We just want to be able to control cars," she says.

Kruse says the committee also is seeking ways to build a performing arts center, as well as an arts and crafts center to woo local craftspeople.

"We want to preserve and memorialize the culture and history of Carmel and to keep it alive," explains Kruse, adding that the city could purchase a building for arts and craftspeople.

Members of the 2016 Committee say their work is not an exercise in pipe-dreaming.

"We are being very realistic in terms of goal-oriented dreams," says Kruse.

OVERHEARD:

At the Post Office:

"We're going up to the opera next week, thanks to the Foundation. I can't wait to get away from the fog for the day!"

At Harrison Memorial Library:

"I moved here three years ago, and I haven't been lonely since. I've made so many good friends at the Foundation."

At the Carmel Foundation:

"This place was such a great comfort after my husband died. I've never appreciated the Foundation more than I do now."

THE FOUNDATION. Glowing references are the trademark of this exceptional organization, situated in the heart of Carmel at Lincoln and Eighth.

Anyone who lives on the Monterey Peninsula and is 55 years of age or older is eligible for membership. The services provided to seniors are far-ranging, and the only cost involved is a requested annual, individual contribution. There is no set fee; members are encouraged to contribute in proportion to income.

Today, the Carmel Foundation is 4,000 members strong, and it is perhaps the brightest gem in Carmel-by-the-Sea's Diamond Jubilee crown. Yet, as the community gears up for its 75th anniversary celebration in October, there was a time when the very concept of the Foundation

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Letters to the editor are welcome. Views on all matters are acceptable, following the guidelines of good taste. While there is no limit on length, brevity is encouraged. Slaughter of horses

Dear Editor:

In this country, over 300,000 horses per year are sent to slaughter for human consumption. At present, California slaughter-bound horses are not afforded the basic protection against abuse provided for cattle and sheep. A bill is presently before the Governor to provide for protection against the most cruel of these abuses.

Lobbyists are pressuring the Governor to veto this bill, which has been passed by both the Assembly and the Senate. Please write or phone the Governor in support of Assembly Bill 500. (Governor Pete Wilson, State Capitol, Sacramento, CA 95814, Phone 916-445-2841.

Freedom of taste

Dear Editor:

The Laubs believe that the people in Carmel would riot over something as tasteless as their Freedom publication? I'll bet that they didn't. I do think that the Laubs are themselves in incredibly poor taste, as is their publication. I definitely feel that Carmel has too many jewelry stores. I further believe that if the founders of Carmel could have conceived that somewhere in the future people like the Laubs would show up and demand equal time for their brand of freedom they would probably have moved on to King City. (Why don't the Laubs open up a jewelry store in King City? I hear they actually need one there.) I am not the least upset that the Japanese invested in Pebble Beach because I know that they will take good care of it. I also know that they will not move Pebble Beach out of the country. I think leaving the managing of Carmel-By-the-Sea to Jean Grace and the other elected officials is a wise idea. They certainly have a better idea of what the founders had in mind for Carmel than do the Laubs. P.S. The interesting statistics on the front page of Freedom must have lumped bakeries under other — I love businesses that produce basic items like bread.

Theater at Ft. Ord?

Dear Editor:

Included in the list of possibilities for the future use of Ft. Ord should be a theatre with large enough seating capacity to attract world class entertainers. Entertainment along the lines of the Paul Masson program in Saratoga would attract a large attendance and provide additional customers for our hotels, motels, shops, and restaurants.

Such an installation would still leave plenty of space for a branch of San Jose State University, as well as light industry and other possible uses.

Another possibility that merits consideration is to reassess the decision to close the base in the first place. Soviet military capabilities, including ICBMs with atomic warheads, are still formidable despite the aborted coup attempt. If Gorbachev and Yeltsin can't improve the Soviet economy, we don't know who will succeed them.

Up the canyon

Dear Editor:

This is a response to the EPA's recent letter about the Hatton Canyon Freeway. Contrary to the idea that the EPA's approach to the Hatton Canyon Freeway issue is compelling, we have a differing opinion.

We believe that the EPA has no jurisdiction at this time in the environmental review process. It is the Army Corps of Engineers that must make an official position on wetlands, and then only after a detailed permit application, written comments, and public hearings.

Even before this occurs, Caltrans must still seek Federal Consistency from the California Coastal Commission and release a final Environmental Impact Statement.

Another interpretation of the EPA's letter may be that construction of the freeway will never occur, because an "only practicable alternative" invokes but one of four criteria that could deny the destruction of wetlands Clean Water Act wetland guidelines. In fact, the EPA's stipulations create such a burden on a freeway design to protect wetlands that the cost of the freeway would be prohibitive.

The assumption that the formidable task to destroy the Hatton Canyon wetlands is not "impossible," could be changed to say, that saving the Hatton Canyon wetlands is a formidable task but not impossible.

All newspapers at large would do a greater service to the community by fairly reporting the real complexities of the environmental review process that the Highway 1 Improvement Project must undergo, rather than creating impressions that Hatton Canyon Freeway is now a done deal. Far from it!

One solution to parking fines

Dear Editor:

This letter is in response to Mr. Jim Genone's scathing letter denouncing our parking enforcement people. (Sept. 5, Letter To The Editor) It's always sad to read a letter that cannot be responded to by the person being accused. Why? Because Mr. Genone has chastised ALL parking enforcement officers. He thinks it is OK to say that these people have no feelings what so ever. I have received several citations while working in Carmel and I've paid them without complaint.

Why? Because I knew I was parked over my time limit. The signs say how much time you have. Where do you want these officers to draw the line? It seems that Mr. Genone has an ax to grind simply over "a $10 ticket". Maybe if he had left his parking stall for one of his many patrons, he could have earned three or four times that amount through a sale. It took me a while of paying for tickets of my own to realize that I had a choice. Now I kill three birds with one stone. I park at Vista Lobos Parking Lot (Third and Junipero), walk to work, (getting my exercise), and leave a vacant space open for one of my prospective patrons! I love my Carmel and I work hand and hand with it. But if I've done wrong I'll be the first to admit it. I can't imagine how difficult it must be for the parking officers when they have people like you to contend with. You don't really care about the parking problem. You're content with having the whole City be a two-hour zone. That idea is good I must admit. But you blew it when you did a hypocritical turn-around by saying let's try it for six months. Then if it doesn't work, we can all write ridiculous editorials like yours. I've talked to several parking officers over the years and I've never had a bad experience with any.

Maybe it's my easy going attitude and understanding ways. Some traits that more people should adopt. Mr. Genone, you talk of seagulls, I assume you don't like them either. That's OK though because I've found that seagulls spend their lives flying around looking for one hand out after another. If they don't get satisfaction, they squawk and complain until someone throws them a scrap of food. Well here's your scrap Mr. Genone, stop bellyaching and pay your ticket. Oh, by the way...about the seagulls...if the shoe fits!

Golf discrimination

Dear Editor:

It is inconceivable to me that the United States Golf Association would consider holding a tournament at a course as blatantly discriminatory as Pebble Beach. They have publicly stated that they plan to sell memberships in Japan — not in the United States, not to anyone else other than Japanese. Last year there was considerable agitation over the issue that Shoal Creek had no black members. Now we have a situation where not only are there no black members and also no Caucasian members. Now that's discriminatory. Everyone is entitled to their own opinion, but I for one will not volunteer to work on the tournament committee, in fact, I will boycott not only that tournament but all Pebble Beach Co's facilities until they publicly renounce their prior statements.

Deadline approaches to apply for county cultural council grants

THE MONTEREY County Cultural Council announces the availability of monies through a special category: Multi-Cultural Arts Programs.

Grants will be awarded for a specific arts program or series of arts programs rooted in the expressions of a single culture or for programs that involve the ethnic-based expressions of many cultures.

Proposals are encouraged from emerging arts groups and community organizations. All arts programs need the formal sponsorship of a nonprofit organization. In some instances, arts groups who do not possess formal nonprofit status may apply through a sponsoring nonprofit organization.

Projects must primarily serve Monterey County residents and take place during 1992. No awards will be made to individuals.

Sept. 20, 1991 is the deadline for completed applications.

Further information, applications, and assistance in developing proposals may be obtained by writing to the Monterey County Cultural Council, P.O. Box 246, Salinas, CA 93902 or by calling 424-3043.

Knowledge of CPR can help save lives

MORE THAN 70 percent of all CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) rescues occur in the home on an individual known by the rescuer.

Statistics show that more than 650,000 people in the United States died from heart attacks in 1986 and that heart disease is the leading cause of death in Monterey County. On the other hand CPR saves more than 250 lives a day; the more people that know CPR, the more lives that can be saved. With that in mind the Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross offers CPR classes monthly all year. Classes are held at the Carmel Red Cross house at Eighth and Dolores. Classes include demonstrations and teaching of the Heimlich maneuver. Cost is $20 for the eight-hour class. A certificate will be presented upon completion. For more information call the Red Cross at 624-6921.

Supervisors tell state: 'Hands off Point Sur'

By DAVID LELAND

NO PUBLIC agency or private party is above the strict viewshed policies of the Big Sur Local Coastal Plan. That's the message county Supervisors sent to state Department of Parks and Recreation officials this week.

In unanimously upholding a Monterey County Planning Commission decision denying the state a Coastal Permit, supervisors on Tuesday halted plans to renovate the entrance at Point Sur Lighthouse State Park.

"There are all kinds of alternatives and they have to be formally explored," said 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman, adding that the state must work closely with Big Sur residents to come up with a workable plan. "I don't see the rush."

State officials said they were "disappointed" by the planning commission's March 8 decision for improvements at the park, and the issue was now pitting critical viewshed policies versus safe access for those touring the historical site.

"There's no valid reason to deny this," said Norm Kaucala, state landscape designer, adding after the hearing that his agency would appeal the county's ruling to the state Coastal Commission.

Currently about 50 people take part in three tours during weekends, with each tour averaging about 10 cars, according to Beverly Ewoldsen, a docent at the site for the past five years.

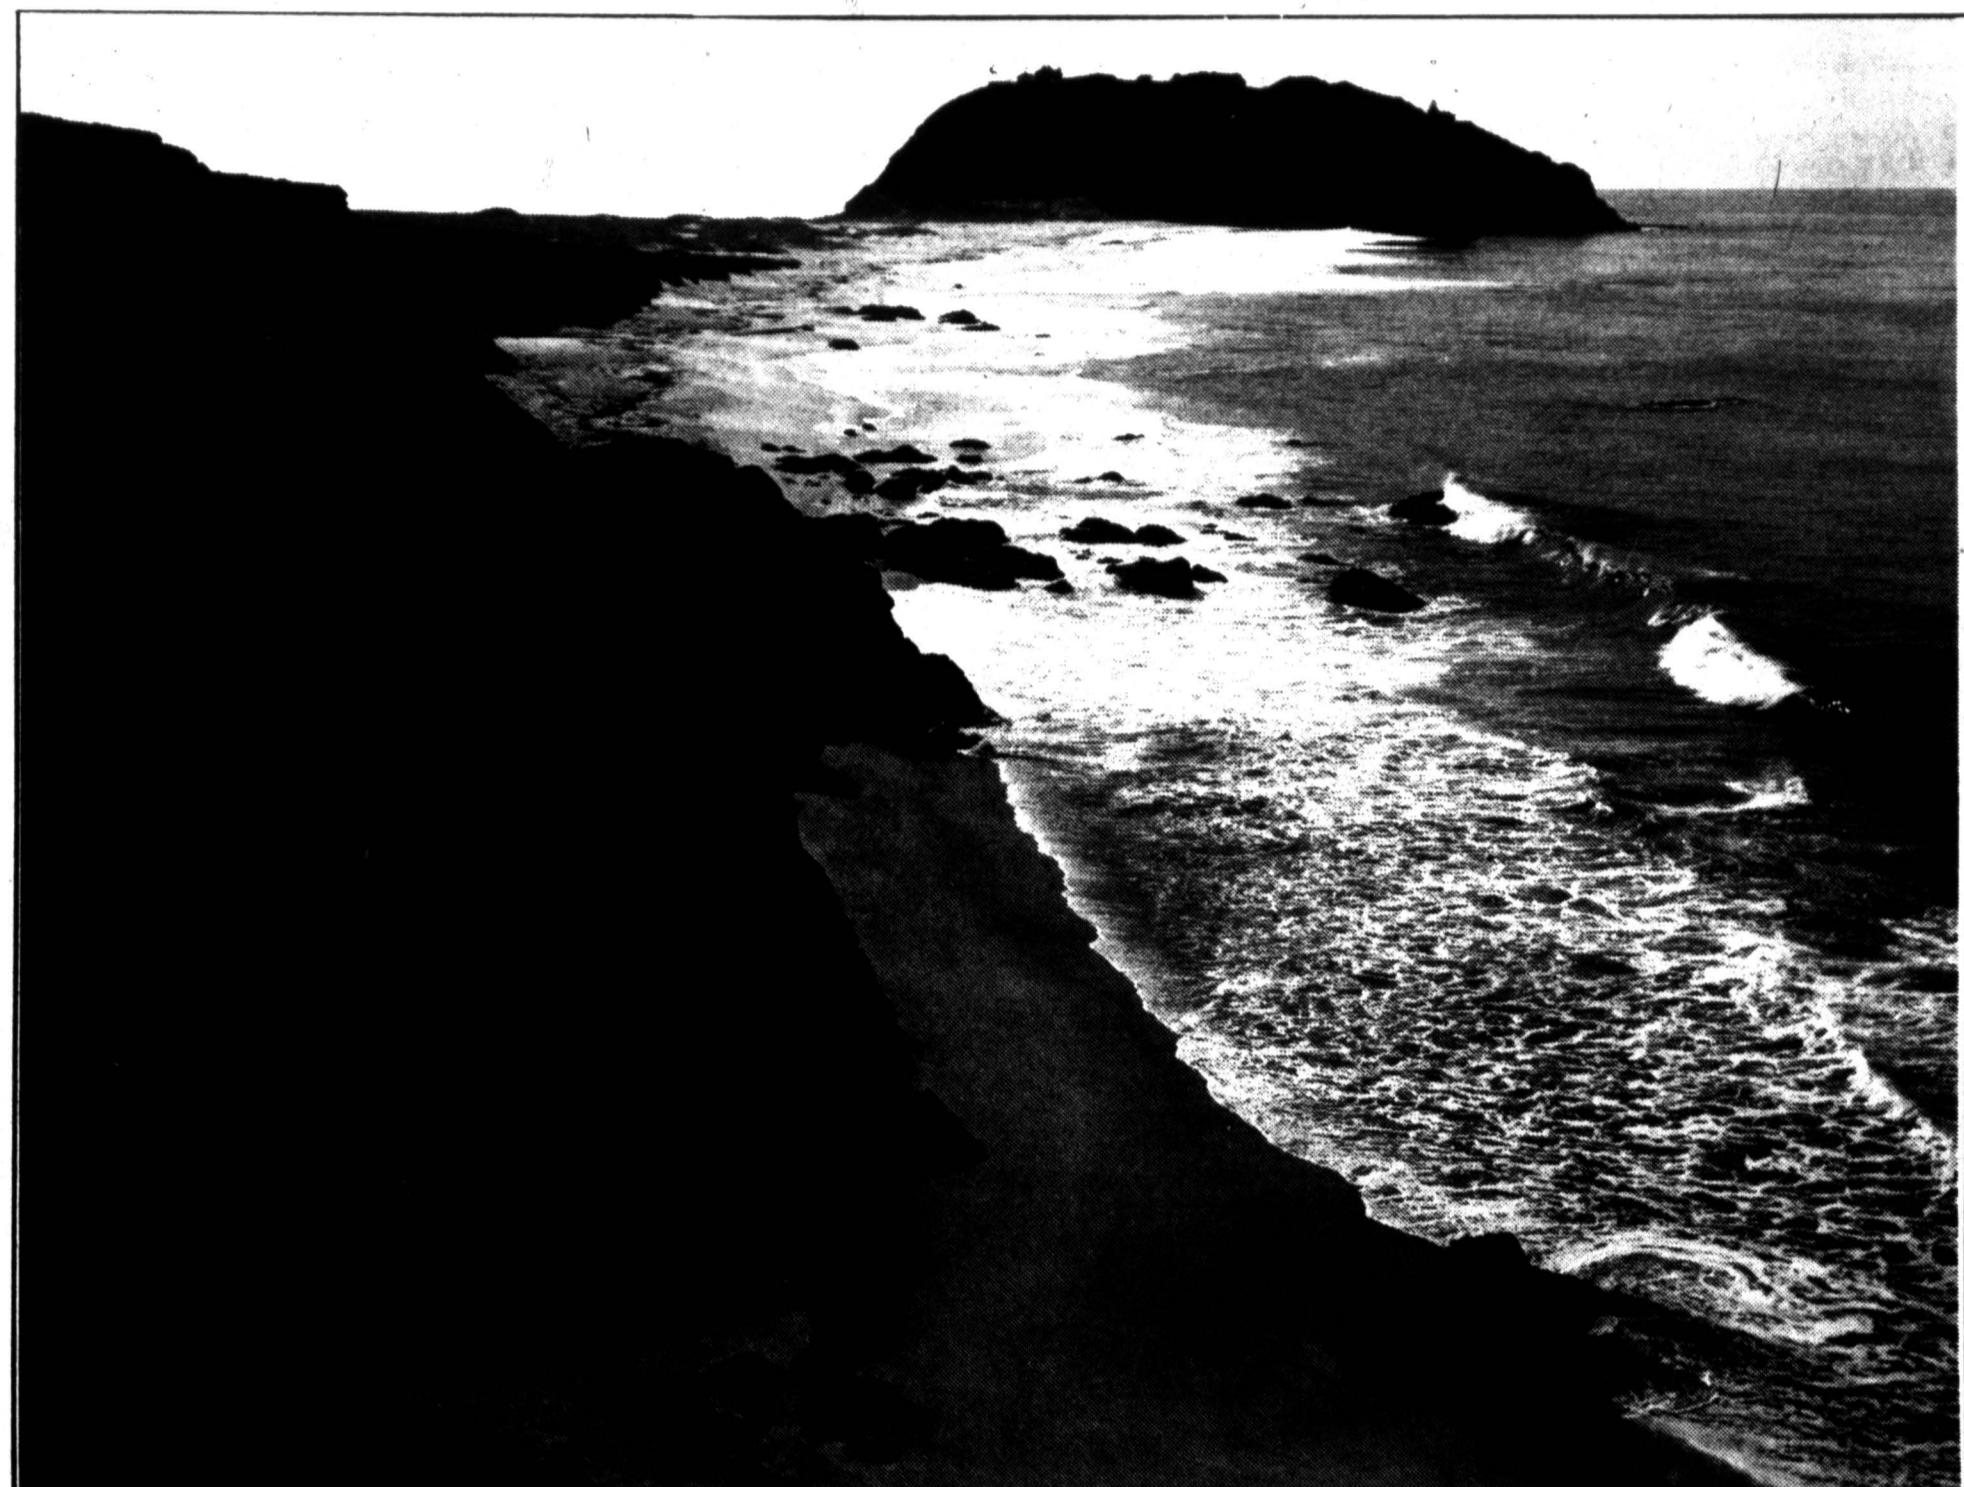

The state is concerned that cars lining up on Highway 1 waiting to be led into the area pose a hazard for motorists. Moreover, once inside, a dirt road is pitted with holes and is unsafe.

Strasser Kauffman said that there have been no accidents or problems to date with people entering or exiting the site.

The state has proposed a new gate, shoulder improvements to Highway 1, grading a 550-foot driveway improvement and planting 34 Monterey Cypress trees for cosmetic reasons. The price tag: $235,000.

Under the guidelines of the Big Sur coastal plan, the state is exempt from viewshed policies if evidence can be found that the agency has exhausted all environmentally safe possibilities.

"This is potentially precedent-setting."

WITH MILLIONS of visitors passing by Point Sur each year taking in the panoramic view, it is essential that no work take place that might obstruct that pleasure. For that reason supervisors denied the state a permit this said Strasser Kauffman, adding that the 80 miles of coast under the plan must be maintained.

Indeed, several Big Sur residents, the Coast Property Owners Association and Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club spoke out against any project that could affect the viewshed.

"We as a community must sincerely and diligently press for the most environmentally sound, visually acceptable and cost-effective solution," wrote Robert Carver, coast property owners president.

But Kaucala down-played suggestions to use a portion of the Navy base at Point Sur, saying that the federal government has been unresponsive.

Also, a suggestion to park cars of those touring the light house at nearby Andrew Molera State Park and ferry them to Point Sur was also deemed impractical by the state.

But supervisors were unconvinced that the state's idea for renovation were taking into account the viewshed.

"Millions of people travel past that rock and look at it," said Strasser Kauffman, week to renovate the entrance to the historic lighthouse at Point Sur. (William Webb photo.)

referring to the Point Sur landscape. "It has become a symbol of the Big Sur landscape."

Fourth District Supervisor Sam Karas said that he feared the lighthouse area's historic bent could be lost forever if state plans reach fruition.

He told the state that a similar project had ruined Stonehenge, the ancient stone artifacts on England's Salisbury Plain.

"It's become a horrible sight," he said. "I try to find any reason not to go there; that's the impression I get that you are trying to do to Point Sur."

Are you ready for some football? The Padres are

By DAVID LELAND

FEELING ENERGIZED from a 15-0 victory over the Harbor High Pirates, the Carmel Padres stand poised for this week's home-opener against the Santa Cruz Cardinals.

The varsity game is scheduled for 2 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 21, at the CHS football field. Junior varsity will play at 11:45 a.m., with freshman taking the field at 9:45 a.m.

CHS Head Coach Craig Johnston told The Pine Cone that, while the Mission Trails League is stronger than ever this year, his team is prepared.

"I feel like we've done all we can do to get ready," said Johnston, beginning his third year at the helm. "The kids have put time, effort and concentration into making this a good season." Johnston added that several schools have named new head coaches to help their teams, plus the general athletic ability of the league is becoming better.

"We're getting better, but everyone else is too," Johnston said. "It's really tough to see how it will all end up."

One reason the Padres are looking good, Johnston said, is because they have taken on a winning attitude, as well as working a strict weight-training program during the off season.

"There's a lot of pride in this program," said Johnston, who took over the reins of a losing team when he began his tenure. "These kids are really putting in some time."

Last season the Padres finished 5-3-1. However, Johnston said he maintains a realistic view of the team's strengths and weaknesses.

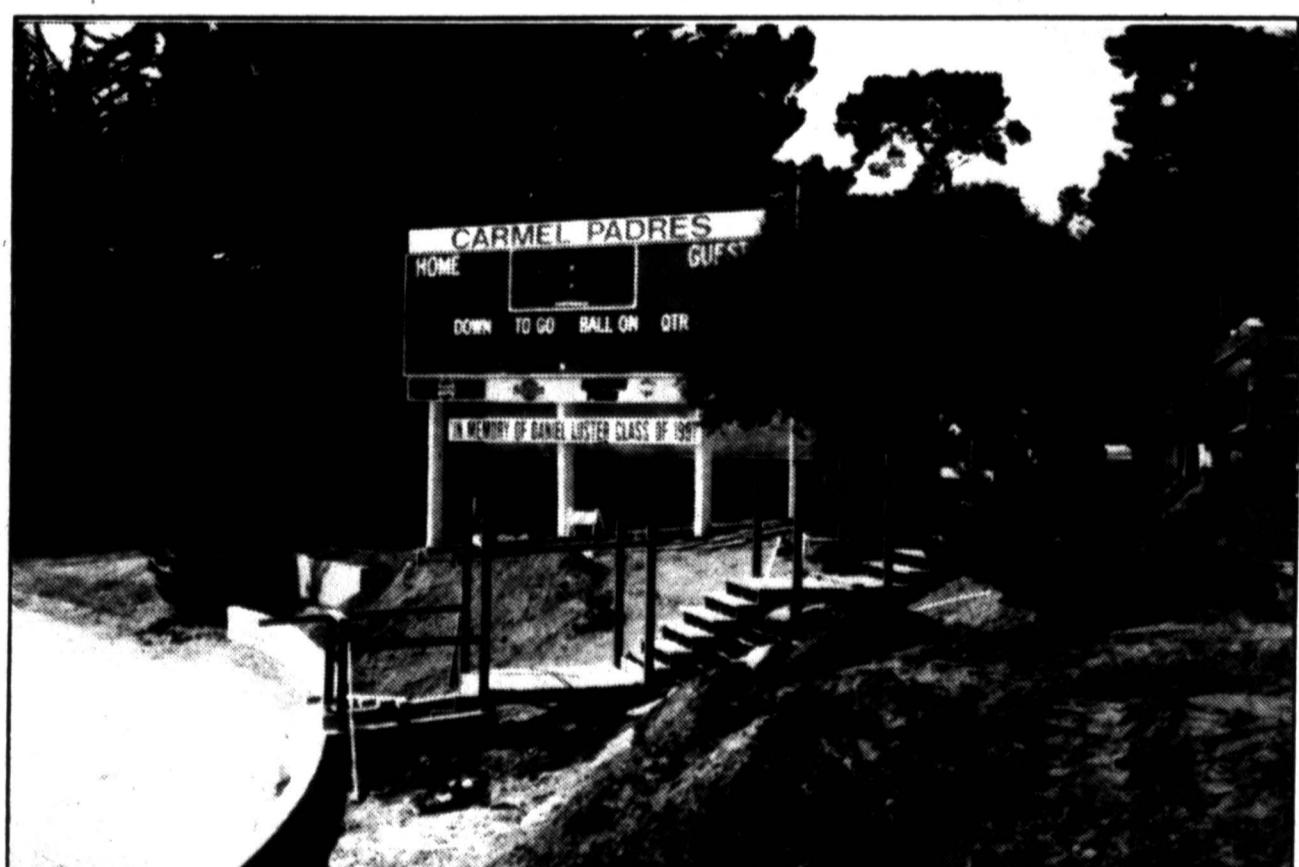

For example, senior quarterback Andrew Wilson does not possess the arm of, say, 49ers quarterback Joe Montana.

"He is best suited to play-action and short rollout passes," Johnston said.

If one game is any indicator of who will shine for the Padres, it is junior fullback Donovan McComb, who gained 123 yards in the first half alone against the Pirates, and ran both scores into the end zone.

Tailback Tobin Leslie, a senior, also aided the Padres cause when he took a pitch from Andrews and hit wide receiver Sam Boehlje, a junior, to set up McComb's second TD.

The Iron Men for the Padres, Johnston said, are the offensive line, composed of right tackle Dominic Petrocelli, a senior; right guard Cho Prasert, a junior; center have been in the program," said Johnston. "All this and they're smart, too," he said, adding that the grade-point average for the men is an incredible 3.6.

First Person

The kindness of strangers

THE STORY didn't make TV news shows or front pages. But for the frightened young woman, what happened a few afternoons ago right by Devendorf Park was hugely significant.

Strangers moved to make sure she was safe after someone had threatened her with physical harm. This wasn't Manhattan, where strollers hear screams and walk or run the other way. This was downtown Carmel — and work-weary citizens cared. And acted in her behalf.

Let's call her Dory. She and I both were amongst the dozen or so folks who awaited the Monterey bus. I read my magazine; she sat on the park fence's top rail and watched birds bicker over bread crumbs.

Suddenly, a pickup truck jolted to a stop just beyond the bus shelter. Its driver — another young woman — shoved the truck into reverse and burned a bit of rubber. Another hard stop, this one right in front of Dory (who couldn't have been more than 17 or 18). Two young men stayed in the truck's cab while the driver got out, slammed the door, half-ran our way.

The driver shook her fist at Dory. "If you're still here when we come back," the driver said, "we're going to get you." Before she went behind the wheel again, the driver threw Dory another hate look, pointed her finger, added: "Don't forget — I'm after you!" The gears ground. The three in the truck were gone.

Dory hadn't jumped down from the rail. She sat there, paled, trying for composure. Everyone had seen and heard, of course. No one bothered her with questions.

She trembled. Her eyes went this way and that, looking for the front of that pickup truck. Good Lord — she was younger than my daughter. "Will you be all right?" I finally asked.

"I'm pretty shook," she said. "It was from a tiff. Last year at school. I never thought it would last this long. Maybe I'll get a restraining order."

"Look," I said. "I work at the Carmel newspaper. It's right up that street. If they come back, walk up there with me, fast, and we'll find you a ride home."

Before she could reply, a bus came around the corner and stopped in front of that shelter. The bus already was crowded with restaurant workers going home to Monterey and Seaside. Dory was at the line's end, still watching for that truck. She had the trembling under control, but not the panic-primed glances.

Then the bus driver called out: "Room for one more — only one more gets on —"

A blonde woman turned, looked at Dory, said to the others in that line: "Let her in. They might not come back. But then, they might. Give her the space —"

And you know what? Everyone in front of Dory stepped out of that line, smiled, nodded. They, hungry and perhaps a bit grumpy after the day's labors, agreed without words that the blonde woman was correct. Dory didn't get a seat, but at least she was inside the bus and out of immediate harm's way.

All I know about the personal clash between two young women was what Dory said. How she handled it would be her own business. At least she knew, from that moment by the park, that strangers could give regard through unplanned and unexpected action.

Nominees for water board sought

THE MONTEREY County Farm Bureau is soliciting applications and nominations for persons interested in serving on the Monterey County Water Resources Agency managing board of directors.

By virtue of a new County ordinance, passed Aug. 27, the board of supervisors will appoint a board to govern the day-to-day operations of the Water Resources Agency. Farm Bureau is responsible to surface two qualified nominees, from whom the supervisors will appoint one to serve on the newly created agency board.

Farm Bureau has sent out applications to all members in the County. The deadline for receipt of these applications is Sept. 20. The Farm Bureau will then screen and interview applicants/nominees to select the most qualified persons to nominate to the board of supervisors for their consideration. The supervisors have requested the names of the Farm Bureau nominees by Oct. 8, so that appointments can be made by Oct. 15.

Interested persons should contact the Monterey County Farm Bureau office for more details, at 422-9063.

BUSINESS BEAT

By David Leland

That's who

CARMEL RESIDENT Linda Williams, owner of Linda Williams — By Design, has been named to the 1991 edition of "Who's Who in Interior Design" for the third consecutive year.

Williams was cited for her ability to determine her clients' needs and lifestyles and then create the best personal environment for them — call it fine-tuning their life.

"Comfort is a priority for most of my clients," says Williams, who estimates that 80 percent of her business is residential. "I take great pride in drawing up floor plans, selecting the ideal furniture, creating color schemes and looking for special treasures that truly personalize a home."

Prior to moving to Carmel in 1987, Williams operated an interior design company in Houston for 10 years. She is an Allied Member of the American Society of Interior Designers, serves on the board of Soroptimist International of Carmel Bay and was one of a dozen designers who took part in the 1991 March of Dimes Gourmet Gala.

He moves like a cat...That would be Carmel Valley resident and veteran imported auto exec Fred Willis, who has been appointed manager of Monterey Jaguar, Rolls-Royce, Ferrari, Saab in Seaside.

A former denizen of Tucson, Ariz., where he owned Fred Willis Motors for eight years (specializing in Porsche, Audi and Lotus), Willis is a widower with grown children.

"I've been familiar with and appreciative of the Central Coast for a long time," says Willis, who parks his Beech Bonanza at the Carmel Valley Airport. "I intend to become very visible in the community, supporting its goals as well as those of the dealership."

New CV advertising concern...Longtime peninsula resident John Keller, whose marketing and advertising credits span two decades, has formed The Keller Group in Carmel Valley Village.

The concept, surrounding the full-service agency brings a diverse base of creative talent in art, writing and media placement.

Keller's marketing tenure on the peninsula began in 1970 with Monterey Savings & Loan, where he served as vice president and chief marketing officer until 1979, when he became a founding partner with Bowen, Keller & Greco.

IN CASE you are one of the multitudes of hungry munchers wondering where Cloris Ellis, owner of Cloris' Croissants at the American Tin Cannery for seven years, has gone we have the answer: she is now pastry manager of Monterey Baking Co. That's right, customers can now enjoy her scrumptious blueberry-walnut bran muffins and chocolate chip cookies at any of the six Monterey Baking Co. stores. (Mac McDonald photo.)

In his spare time, the CV resident can be seen playing with local band "Strictly Country."

News from Pebble Beach...Rich Cosand has been named manager/head professional at The Links at Spanish Bay, according to Paul Spengler, vice president of golf for the Pebble Beach Co.

Cosand, who has been with the company since 1983, began his career as a golf shop assistant at Spyglass Hill Golf Shop. In 1987 he was promoted to assistant manager at the Pebble Beach Golf Shop.

"Having been at both Spyglass Hill and Pebble Beach, Rich brings to Spanish Bay, not only seven years with the company, but the enthusiasm, dedication and leadership to the continued efforts of making Spanish Bay a world-class golf operation," says Spengler. "I look forward to Rich and the staff at The Links at Spanish Bay continuing to provide the professional and hospitable service for which Spanish Bay is renowned."

New business...Carmel resident Lee Fazekasa has opened Carmel Alterations in the Vista Lobos Apartment Building, located on the southeast corner of Monte Verde Street and Seventh Avenue.

Hours are 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Prior to Oct. 3, the store is offering a 20-percent discount.

POSITIVELY PADRE

A new school day

THE SOUND of shuffling feet and murmuring voices once again fill the halls of Carmel High School. With the advent of the new school year, students are greeted with new faces, new ideas, and even a new school day.

Last year, and for the previous 49 years, the school day was divided into six 55-minute periods beginning at 7:50 a.m. and ending at 2:30 p.m. There was a 20-minute break between second and third period and lunch was 35 minutes long, in between fourth and fifth period.

The 1991-92 school year, however, has been earmarked for change. A seven period plan has been set in place. There are now seven 50-minute periods, and the school day stretches from 7:50 a.m. to 2:50 p.m. There is a 15-minute break in between periods four and five and lunch, still 35 minutes long, comes between fifth and sixth period.

The main goal of this plan is to offer more elective and Regional Occupation Program (ROP) classes to students. Study hall is also available to students now. Everyone at school has his own opinion about the seven-period day.

Some students enjoy being able to take more electives, as sophomore Danielle Wall states, "I like it, being able to do more electives and not have a zero period class but as for a shorter period - it seems like a lot can't get done."

Junior Lindsay Webb agrees, "It's a really long day actually. You get opportunities (with seven periods) to take another elective class but it does take time away from break. Lunch at 12:30 is pretty late."

Senior Chris Bolton shares the same opinion, "I think it's good in some respects for it allows people to take more electives. It does put lunch later. I wouldn't want to be here for the extra 20 minutes after seventh period!"

Chris is one of the lucky few who don't have a seventh period.

From a teacher's point of view, math instructor Lowell Battcher states, "I think there are good and negative points. There's potential for more variety in classes. Negatively, some classes seem shorter and less gets done. It's a good thing we're still teaching five periods, for I have more time to prepare at school."

ROP- Animal Care teacher Liz Meyenburg has other views, "I don't like it - I see too many problems. It was supposed to help electives and it seems to have killed them off."

Personally, I am not particularly fond of the seven-period day. It makes for a brutally long day if one is taking six or seven solid classes.

With more classes comes more homework, but less time to do it at home. After-school athletics compounds the problem. Also, with second period trapped between first and third with no break, it makes staying after class, or coming in early, to ask a question or finish a lab impossible.

ife at Carmel High School has certainly been shaken up by these changes and the seven-period day is one students and faculty will have to work through together.

Heather Walch is a senior at Carmel High School. A member of the school band and co-editor of the Padre's yearbook, Heather hopes to attend either Rice, a University of California campus or the University of Wyoming next fall and major in geology. She will be offering her insights and commentary of life at Carmel High School to the Carmel Pine Cone on a regular basis.

DORIS DAY'S BEST FRIENDS

By Doris Day

Placing your pet

AS PROMISED, this week I'd like to offer some tips on finding a new home for your pet by running an ad, and this column will focus on dogs.

First—check with everyone you know who might provide a lead to a new, loving home. Ask relatives, friends, co-workers, your veterinarian, your mailman. Take a great picture of your pet, write a clever, brief description, and see if you can post it at your office, your church or your veterinarian's office.

Then write a great ad, something with emotion that will make people want to see your pet. For example: "Precious German Shepherd mix, neutered male, desperately needs loving home. All shots, house-trained, perfect family pet, free to best home." Hopefully, you'll get some good calls, but I won't mislead you—there are thousands of homeless pets out there and not many good homes.

When interviewing prospective owners over the phone, I get a feeling about the person right away. It has to do with their tone of voice, their sincerity and interest, and how they respond to my questions:

1. Are you familiar with this breed?

Generally speaking, most breeds have certain inherent characteristics. For instance, Terriers tend to be a bit hyper and feisty and may not be too pleased with an active toddler as a playmate. The same goes for Cocker Spaniels. Labs and Retrievers, on the other hand, tend to be calm, patient and gentle. They make excellent family pets. It's important for your caller to be familiar with your breed.

2. Do you have children? What are their ages?

You ask this for the reasons stated above. Also, if you're placing a puppy it's not a good idea to place it in a family with small children. It could be dangerous for the puppy.

3. Is your yard fenced? How high is the fencing?

It's important to have at least a 6' fence, and one that is well-built, not rickety and ready to fall down! If your dog is an escape artist, you must let the caller know.

4. Where will the dog sleep?

If the answer is, "In a doghouse on the patio," it's the wrong answer. They should all have a warm, cozy bed indoors.

5. Will someone be home during the day? Where will the dog be when you're not there?

Lots of people go home for lunch to spend some time with their pets. If your caller works, be aware that your pet will be alone for at least nine hours each day. Ask the caller if he could get home at lunchtime to give the dog treats, play a little ball in the yard, and give him some attention. It's a nice break for your four-legger who sits alone all day, waiting.

6. Do you have a doggy door?

This is a must! It's important for your dog to be a part of the family, to be able to go in and out. To go in when he wants to be with you and to go out when he has a need.

7. How many dogs or cats have you owned?

We've heard, "Oh, lots. Some got hit by a car and one was stolen,"—wrong answer! This isn't the right home for your beloved pet.

If your caller answers your questions with the honesty and sincerity you're looking for, the next step is a visit. Invite the prospective owner to your home to meet your pet. That way your dog will be seen where he's most comfortable and he'll look his best. It will really give the prospective owner a chance to see how the dog reacts in his own surroundings. And if this visit turns out well, then you take your dog to visit the new home. More on that next week!

THE FIRST MURPHY

625-0566 Enid Sales, Chairperson

First Murphy party

THE FIRST Murphy committee is excited and pleased to announce an upcoming event on Friday and Saturday, Sept. 27 and 28, at the First Murphy on Lincoln St. near Sixth.

On Friday late afternoon and evening, everyone is welcome to come by the First Murphy site for cheerful, toe-tapping bluegrass music and free munchies. The public is invited to preview the wonderful items donated by local businesses and residents to the First Murphy renovation project. Items include antique hardware and tools, quality doors from the original First Murphy, and other surprise treasures.

This party will celebrate the 89th birthday of the First Murphy. Just around the corner, the Post Office will be celebrating the city's 75th anniversary. So make a note on your calendar to attend both fun events that afternoon, and take part in honoring our city's heritage.

You have all noticed how far along the First Murphy renovation has come. The shingled roof, the spiffy front windows, the new siding—everything looks terrific! After years of neglect and disrepair, the cottage has been groomed and cared for, becoming its truly beautiful self once again.

Hard-working volunteers, led by project director and general contractor Enid Sales, have performed a task which many people originally thought impossible. Now is your chance to see the cottage up close.

The charming milk shrine donated to the First Murphy site by the Francis Herrick family will be on display. The shrine will be renovated and used at the site to serve a more modern function, with a plaque explaining its original, uniquely Carmel use.

The actual sale of the donated items will take place on Saturday, Sept. 28, in the morning. Early birds usually get the juiciest tidbit, so we suggest that you visit the preview on Friday to be "in the know" and ready for action on Saturday.

Sand Castle Contest

Yes, the First Murphy committee will be at the beach on Sept. 21, building their enchanted cottage in the sand. All volunteer labor, of course, just like the renovation work itself. Anyone interested in helping out, please call Enid at 625-0566 or show up at the beach Saturday morning with a spray-bottle and your First Murphy sweatshirt!

Sweatshirts, by the way, are available in Murphy green or white, and may be ordered by calling 624-8170. Small, medium, and large are $20; extra-large are $25. The sweatshirts are definite fashion statements and, more importantly, they show that the wearer proudly supports the preservation of Carmel's unique historic and architectural assets.

The sweatshirts are perfect gifts for Murphy house owners, and the fact that they are going like hotcakes is testimony to the prolific output of Master Builder M.J. Murphy. (Or maybe it's telling us that we've had an inordinately cool and foggy summer.)

See you all at the Sandcastle Contest this Saturday, and at the party the following week!

Achievement in community spirit appeared no more than a Utopian scheme, devised by idealistic, well-meaning dreamers.

It was Jane Egan Trevett who first imagined what the Foundation could be. In 1948, she began to hold a series of meetings in her home on Scenic Road, and her "think tank" included many of Carmel's finest minds.

"I have very loving memories of those people," longtime Carmel resident Miss Hope Hasty says. "I had come to know Mrs. Sidney Trevett because we were both on the board of the Red Cross. She was looking for people to discuss the severe conditions of some of the elderly people in our town. The meetings were held at night, and all of those who attended were retired and distinguished people. One man, for instance, had been the president of Occidental College. I was very young, and it was quite something for someone my age to be included. I respected their wisdom, and they seemed interested in my particular viewpoint."

"I worked in a bank," she continues, "and so many elderly people tottered in there, often frightened, confused and lonely. They were trying to get along on the money they had when they came here, thinking at the time that it would last them until they died. Unfortunately, that wasn't always the case."

She adds, "And it certainly isn't now. Definitely not."

The meetings at Mrs. Trevett's continued for two years. "It seemed like a long time before anything happened," Miss Hasty recalls. "Mostly, there were discussions where every possible prudent concern was considered. People expressed their deepest feelings. What would be the tone of such an organization? How would the community react?"

"Some people said flatly that they would have nothing to do with it, that it would never get off the ground. Others were mildly interested. Then, the Foundation became officially incorporated. People slowly began to ask more questions. The Rector at All Saints Church called a meeting at the old church, where City Hall is now. Quite a few people turned out."

Directors of the new corporation were Mrs. Sidney A. Trevett (honorary president), Dr. L.A. Williams (president), Mrs. Charles A. Fuller (vice-president), Miss Hope Hasty (treasurer), Mrs. Laurence Barretto (secretary), Captain Archer Allen, Dr. Remsen Bird, Miss Jane Burritt, Dr. Helen Field, Mrs. P.H. Hudgins, Mr. M.C. Jenkins, Colonel Harold Mack, Mrs. Joseph Stilwell, Mr. Ralph Castagna, Mrs. William Dekker, Mrs. Horace Dormody, The Rev. A.B. Seccombe, Mr. Corum Jackson, Miss Katherine Smits and Mr. E.L. Snyder.

The new organization took a small office in town. "I attribute a great deal to a very quiet, unassuming retired lady, Dr. Helen Field," Miss Hasty explains. "I believe she had earned several degrees at Columbia University. She was about to go into a retirement home, and it was she who contributed the first $500."

In 1950, a simple, two-page statement was distributed to interested parties. At the top was the slogan that never fails to fascinate new visitors to the present Foundation headquarters — "An adventure in neighborliness".

This forty-one year old declaration reads: "The purpose of the Carmel Foundation is 'to provide for the residence, health, care and good living and the welfare and well-being of persons in and about Carmel who are advanced in years and not otherwise sufficiently cared for.' It is still in the swaddling clothes of infancy and will have to grow into the full stature of those responsibilities."

"Its spirit and motive are in the tradition of a kind and thoughtful neighbor who holds out a helping hand when needed. It has no wish or intent to interfere in the life of anyone and no desire to be or seem officious. It only asks to serve and not pass by on the other side those persons who have borne the heat of the day and are now approaching the evening hours of their lives. It would try to exemplify the attitudes of the Good Samaritan.

"Riches or poverty, high or low estate, race or color, religious faith or belief, can offer no prior claim for its consideration or services. Need alone, temporary or continuing, provides the open sesame to the Foundation's services. It has no mes-

The membership grew quickly.

In 1958, the Board jubilantly received the news that they could burn the mortgage, thanks to a generous donation from Monterey Peninsula Volunteer Services.

In the early seventies, the needs of the Foundation had become such that the board determined that they must expand further, and they could afford to do so after a series of financial gifts and bequests from local residents.

Their plans were not popular at City Hall. After many fruitless meetings and drawn-out discussions, the Foundation sage to deliver, no creed to preach, no political theory to expound, no big deal to propose. It strives to bring into the life of the aged some measure of dignity, of security, of comfort and satisfaction.

"Its program embraces such elements as: visits, in illness and in health; financial assistance, temporary or otherwise; watchful care, at home or at some properly conducted center; performance of personal services; emergency aid in time of personal or community disaster. Establishment and maintenance of a center where the aged may assemble and live a community life is a desire and a hope not entirely outside the range of possibilities. "It was a favorite remark of Elbert Hubbard's that East Aurora (N.Y.) was not a place but a state of mind. Perhaps the Carmel Foundation is not a corporation or an organization but a state of mind. If so, it is a part of the eternal stream of life manifested by human beings when they behave like good neighbors."

"I think of the Foundation," says Hope Hasty, "as the very ethos of this place. Carmel has always had good people helping sweetly and quietly."

By the summer of 1952, the Carmel Foundation had almost six thousand dollars in the bank, a large part of it granted by the Bing Crosby Fund. Mrs. Ruth Saret was hired as Executive Director, a position she held for the next twelve years. "A trained social worker and a wonderful lady," praises Miss Hasty. "Another person who proved invaluable was Miss Alice Seckels. I reluctantly had to resign from the board since my employer objected to my attending meetings in the afternoon so I suggested that Miss Seckels be invited to join. She was very much involved with the Monterey Peninsula Volunteer Services group, and when she was added to the Foundation board, things started happening! She urged MPVS to aid the Foundation, and they have been helping ever since."

In October 1952, the Foundation established its headquarters in "Town House," an "Old Carmel" home sitting on the second lot on the southeast corner of Lincoln and Eighth. The first part of the original dream was now becoming a reality for "Town House" was able to offer activities and companionship for seniors.

Berkeley to her doctor. She was grateful for this help, and she saw what a lovely place the Foundation was..."

Gestures from the residents and other good-hearted believers had previously built the board's confidence in acquiring two downtown motels in the mid-sixties. These were transformed into attractive apartments for members, thus fulfilling the most daring and progressive part of the founding dream — low-cost housing. If Trevett Court, named to honor Mrs. Sidney A. Trevett, and Haseltine Court, commemorating the contributions of the highly respected Miss Orre B. Haseltine gave the board's spirits a lift, their new and beautiful Lincoln Street complex sent their vision soaring.

As usual, however, they moved with caution, and it wasn't until the eighties that the state-of-the-art Norton Court came into being.

R. T. "Dick" Nimmons was the spearhead for this ambitious project. He had his wife had moved to Carmel from Southern California after his retirement as vice president of Pomona College. "I had heard so many favorable things about the Foundation that I joined and enrolled in a photography class. I like what I saw and thought I'd like to get involved. Betty Plank, who was then Executive Director, urged me to go on the Board. I was president for two terms, and it was one of the most gratifying experiences I ever had in working with boards.

"Bringing Norton Court to fruition was a very interesting experience," Nimmons declares. "We all recognized the need for it. Many people said, 'You'll never raise that kind of money in today's economy.' We were fortunate enough to prove them wrong."

An estate gift of $1.2 million from the late Robert A. and Ruth Norton, longtime Carmel residents and next-door neighbors of the Foundation as well as members, provided the impressive legacy that made Norton Court a reality. "The Norton gift was a splendid contribution that certainly came at the needed time," says Nimmons, who was then both board president and chairman of the housing committee. "There were also gifts to the Rendtorff and George and Catherine Comstock Seideneck while the Foundation's Executive Director John Freitas and his staff work out of the Administration Building, named for Adolph and Mildred Hanke, whose beautiful mansion in Hatton Fields was left to and sold by the Foundation.

The third building is Diment Hall, a large multi-purpose room, used for the lunches that are served to members on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday as well as the stimulating Wednesday afternoon programs. It also encompasses dances, exercise classes, Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners and other major social events.

It is Hope Hasty's recollection that the Foundation's gracious "how may we help you" attitude led to Constance Diment's handsome bequest. "Miss Diment lived at Park Lane and was most shy and reclusive. Someone told her about the Foundation so she went in and wanted to know if there was anyone who could drive her to Foundation established in the wills of Arthur and Mildred Mason and a $100,000 gift from the Barnet J. Segal Charitable Trust which was earmarked especially for the housing program. I can't begin to tell you how good this made us feel.

"Everyone on the committee was extremely diligent and felt a strong sense of obligation to spend each dollar in the best possible way. We did a lot of research on what had been done elsewhere. I visited a number of organizations in Northern California and received helpful suggestions. We selected state-of-the-art fixtures and appliances and took advantage of the finest planning ideas for both able and disabled people. We carefully chose our architects and were very pleased with the outcome because they helped us incorporate the latest developments in the field."

Did the research uncover any other organization in California or nationally that offers as many services to seniors as the Foundation?

Nimmons confirms what so many other reflective, well-traveled people have observed — "The Foundation truly is unique."

He singles out John Freitas, Executive Director for the past five and a half years, for his commitment in enhancing the Foundation's goals. "He's always looking for ways in which the Foundation can serve. Just one example would be the driving service. It was John's idea to add that, and it has proved its worth many times over. The social side of the Foundation has broadened in terms of Saturday dances and movies and the use of the facilities on Sunday has become more prominent. We're very lucky to have John Freitas."

The Foundation is unique in another way in that surprisingly few of its 4,000 members take advantage of all that it has to offer, and yet their memberships are faithfully renewed each year.

"I find this quite an interesting fact," Nimmons says. "The members recognize its worth, keep up their membership and make donations. One thing the board has always been very pleased and proud about is that the Foundation doesn't look to government for assistance. Not everyone understands that. They just presume that it's been funded by government at various stages. But that hasn't been so, and it's been very carefully avoided."

The Foundation is a perpetually lively spot. Meandering up a walkway, the scent of hardy old roses filling the air, one hears delighted laughter and spirited conversations a place for old people who are senile and no longer interested in things. Indeed, it's just the opposite."

"I couldn't agree more," comments Emily Dunn-Stephenson, the current board president. "Members here are interested in everything! That's why we offer more than forty classes, for instance."

She goes on to explain, "At meetings, we often stop to consider the original goals and try to enrich that early foresight. Board terms are for three years, and it takes that long to really understand what the Foundation is all about, what it is and what it is not. The one thing that is always clear is how much credit must be given to our magnificent volunteers. The men and women who serve daily are our greatest strength."

When this comment is repeated to John Freitas in his small, busy office, he quickly nods and elaborates. "There are close to three hundred volunteers. Many of them three years, tells of an elderly lady she recently visited. "She has Alzheimer's, and when I went to see her in the rest home, I identified myself and where I was from. She said to me, 'Who are you again?' "Evelyn from the Carmel Foundation", I repeated. "She put her shoulders back, lifted her head up straight and said, 'I'm a member of that! Aren't I?' "She had such a proud look on her face. It was very moving for me to hear that from a lady who doesn't remember anything."

Kim Martirano, Coordinator of Volunteer and Member Services, says, "It doesn't seem like a job when you work here. You're among friends, and I find that there's a kind of instant acceptance wherever you go when people discover you are involved with the Foundation."

Kim works with volunteers in an endless list of categories — everything from silver polishers to newsletter folders to host and hostesses for the Wednesday programs. "We honored the volunteers during our 40th anniversary last year with special pins, and they certainly deserved them. Volunteers make things run so much more smoothly — like our annual flu shot day when 1,300 people Beahan, who coordinates the Wednesday afternoon programs. In the seventies, she was the manager of the Monterey Symphony, and as she remembers, "I dropped in to the Annual Meeting of the Foundation, and George Walker came over to me and said, 'Will you be on the board?'

"It was so sudden because I knew they were supposed to look you over and talk about you. But he was persistent that day. So I said, 'Well, if I can be of help...' " She was asked to join the program committee and eventually persuaded to take it over. Mrs. Beahan chuckles as she remembers, "When it came time to give my report at board meetings, everyone would clap! You see, mostly the meetings were very serious. Worry about this. Concern about that." She says happily that no one ever turns her down to come and speak or perform at the Wednesday afternoon programs. "By now, it's considered quite an honor to be asked. I've had Hank Ketchum, Gus Arriola, really everybody who's anybody!"

For many of the members, it is Violet Beahan herself who is the highlight of the program. She has a perpetually jam-packed schedule — for she is involved with many other activities beyond the Foundation — but she is always a welcoming and sparkling presence. And an inspiration as well, for she happens to be in her early eighties.

Jane Holmes is another sacred name to the membership. As Tour Coordinator, she plans a selection of day trips that are so popular they are almost always sold out. Hers is a busy and responsible job that keeps her in constant touch with the membership. Jane and her husband pioneered the program fourteen years ago, and after four years as a volunteer, Jane was asked to join the staff. "Last year," she notes, "1,712 members took advantage of our tours."

On the schedule are trips to San Francisco to enjoy the opera and the Symphony, the latest plays, the ballet, art museums as well as shopping expeditions and visits to nature habitats. "Our volunteers are very crucial to this program," she stresses. "And, of course, a major consideration is keeping the trip fees affordable."

"Affordable." With a budget of slightly more than one million dollars a year only 10 per cent of this figure derives from membership dues. Where does the Foundation find the rest of the money?

A serious expression takes over his face as John Freitas scrutinizes the paperwork on his desk. "Thirty-seven per cent is program fee income (predominantly low-cost housing revenue). Twelve per cent is derived from existing restricted funds. Bequests and general donations account for 13 per cent. Together with membership dues, this totals 72 per cent. Thus, in any given year, the projected revenue shortfall of approximately 28 per cent is made up from endowment interest earnings at current rates, and, hopefully, additional bequests. In reality, we can never plan that this shortfall will be matched or exceeded."

As Freitas studies the figures, it is obvious that nothing is ever taken for granted here. Worry will always be part of the board meetings, and the need for benefactors will always exist. "We've been very fortunate over the years," he declares, "but the view of some that the Foundation has more than enough funds to sustain and respond to membership needs is shortsighted."

He sounds resolute as he adds, "The mission and the vision of the Foundation is for the long haul. We are now in our forty-first year, and we plan on being of service as long as there are seniors."

On the surface, John Freitas appears a quiet, low-key, fellow but when he's asked about his own favorite memory of the Foundation, he is transformed. His eyes glisten, and his voice is resonant with pleasure. "Several months ago, we held a party for members over the age of ninety," he says. "It was the most splendid occasion!"

"There were almost forty honorees present. Many of them walked or drove their own car here. Some came with the assistance of relatives. A few needed a wheelchair or walker. We went around the room with a microphone so that everyone who wished to had a chance to speak. They all exuded such confidence and vitality." The festivities included good food and entertainment, but it was the sense of camaraderie that Freitas remembers as being most special.

"In the background were another thirty-five people who were hosts and hostesses, volunteers in their fifties, sixties and seventies, and it was clear they felt honored, too, to be part of the incredible dynamic operating in the room on that day."

"It was a true celebration. A celebration of life — not age."

As Carmel-by-the-Sea prepares to observe its Diamond Jubilee, the community is surely entitled to brag a bit, pat its collective self on the back and proclaim, "Yes, we are tiny but when it's very important we can be mighty!"

The Carmel Foundation is worth crowing about. From the beginning, it has set — and achieved — world class standards. It stands as a shining example of what individuals can accomplish when they work together.

are so dedicated that even the smallest thing doesn't escape them. There are the people who bring in the latest books to the Elizabeth Niles Library on a regular basis. And just the other day, I saw a woman, who was leaving on a trip, drive up to drop off coupons. She ran in, having obviously scheduled it as an important errand on her list, and then she hurried off. She's part of a group of people here who clip out money-saving newspaper coupons for others to use in their grocery shopping."

At the Foundation, small, thoughtful gestures are as much a part of the "adventure in neighborliness" as the amazing lists of classes, day trips, entertainments and support services offered to seniors.

Whenever the Foundation is mentioned, the same words come up over and over: Unique. Worthwhile. Proud.

Evelyn Vitarisi, who has been the Coordinator of Support Services for almost come through the Foundation. They help with home visits, play piano at lunch time, act as cashiers, deliver weekend meals, read to the visually-impaired. We have a volunteer for just about every service anyone could ever need."

Discerning Carmelite shoppers know that the display windows at the Foundation contain exquisite examples of fine needlework, knitting and crafts — all made by volunteers and on sale to benefit the Foundation.

"Being busy can change your life," Kim observes. "That's what so many of the members and volunteers have learned here. What I personally have learned is posted in my office, a favorite quote that a lot of people enjoy reading — 'Age is a matter of mind. If you don't mind, it doesn't matter.'"

This is definitely the philosophy of one of the Foundation's most popular volunteers, the indefatigable Mrs. Violet

Chez Williams

CARMEL NATIVE Lacy Williams Buck and her family were bi-coastal before the word was invented. Four generations of Williams have divided their time between two of the farthest removed points in the U.S., Strout Island, Maine and Carmel-By-The-Sea, California.

Lacy calls the far-flung abodes "the continuity that has held my life together," and with her fiance, Robert Buck, chose to celebrate their marriage on the Williams' ancestral island in Maine. So earlier this month, Lacy, her three daughters, Melissa, Hilary and Amery, granddaughter Hannah Hilary, son-in-law Jon Day, Bob's son Jeremy Buck, assorted family members and guests, suitcases, coolers of food and dog Reggie made the transcontinental trek to Strout Island.

Lacy is proud to come from a family of writers. Her grandfather, Jesse Lynch Williams purchased Strout Island in 1910 and built a cabin and studio on the granite outcroppings. It was here that he wrote Why Marry, a play that would win him the Pulitzer Prize.

Lacy's father, Henry Meade Williams, known locally as the owner of Well's Bookstore, wrote short stories for Colliers, the Saturday Evening Post and American magazine in the studio on the 40-acre island.

Her mother, Mona G. Williams, wrote seven novels between Strout Island and Carmel and is still writing. So Lacy returned to the island which is accessible only by boat; the site of cherished childhood memories and a simpler way of life. She chose a lobster fisherman justice-of-the-peace to perform the outdoor ceremony and wore a sturdy and sweet dress she found at a used clothing store. The dress reminded her of a high necked dirndl her grandmother wore at a clambake in 1918. Bob chose white flannels, suspenders and a bow-tie.

The lobster fisherman pronounced them man and wife. There were hugs all around and then the wedding guests feasted on freshlobster and blueberry wedding cake.

Ironies & Intrigues

It's an honor to be asked to participate in a friend's wedding. But the honor becomes dubious when your friend shows you the cutsey-cutsey bridesmaid dress she's selected for you to wear. today, many modern brides are choosing sophisticated over frilly. Black and white weddings are in. Witness the recent marriage of former Carmel resident Melissa Peyton March to Ron Bailey of LaJolla. The men wore tuxedos and Melissa selected simple black and white knee length sheaths for her attendants.

Sophistication is chic but the bride who chose a black suit and black veil for her recent marriage at The Lodge at Pebble Beach slipped over the edge toward the macabre.

Watch for a few surprises at the Monterey Jazz Festival this year. Sources close to Dizzy Gillespie report that he may be introducing a new performer to festival audiences. Her name? Azure McCall, a chanteuse from Hawaii. She's got style, a great voice and wears incredible earrings. Don't miss her. She's hot.

Speaking of music, the Monterey Bay Symphony Association is in a bind. Their free outdoor Pops Concerts at the Naval Postgraduate School have depleted the coffers and now members are stuck between a rock and a hard spot. Donations that used to help pay for the Monterey Bay Chamber Orchestra season must now also help pay for Pops Concerts.

To make up the difference the Association has set a goal of selling 600 passes for the upcoming season of the Monterey Bay Chamber Orchestra. If they don't make it they may have to cancel the 1991-1992 chamber orchestra season. In that case, all money received from the season passes will be refunded. It shouldn't have to be an "either/or" situation. For information on how you can support the Monterey Bay Symphony Association call Ron Weltzman at 372-6276.

It took a while, but a few Pebble Beach Concours aficionados finally put their finger on it. Something was missing from this year's event. What was it?

The Paris Exchange car, that's what. The Paris Exchange is the arrangement in which the Best of Show winners of the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance and the Automobile Classiques a Bagatelle in Paris show their cars at each others' concours.

Seems the 1990 Paris winner, a Ferrari 330 P4, owned by Albert Obrist, had mechanical problems and couldn't make it to Pebble so the second place car, Berthold Ollmann's Maserati, was flown to San Francisco. Ollman arrived at Pebble Beach, but his Maserati got entangled in red tape and never got out of customs in Oakland. Ollman spent his weekend on the phone in the concours office wrangling unsuccessfully with the stubborn customs agents.

Two Chachagua residents drove into town recently to pick up a redwood hot tub at the home of a friend in residential Carmel. It was necessary for them to dismantle the tub, piece by piece and load it in the back of their truck. A curious neighbor came by, thinking the redwood staves were scrap lumber and asked if he could have a couple boards. The Chachagua residents explained that no, each piece was essential to the tub, but the Carmelite continued to look covetously at the wood. As they drove up the valley the Chachaguans laughed to themselves.

They could see the item in the Sheriff's log section of the newspaper. "Chachagua residents ripped off in Carmel. Carmelite suspected of scrap lumber theft." How's that for irony?

Soft time

The girls are at it again. Trying to copy the good-old-boys. This time they held an "Executive Women's Luxury Lock-Up Luncheon" to benefit March of Dimes. The boys call it "Jail and Bail" when they do it, but the girls changed the name and gave it some class. The "prisoners" were picked up by chauffeured limo rather than the paddy wagon and greeted with a rose and a song by "Singing Sheriff" Pat Duval as they arrived at The Inn at Spanish Bay. They were escorted to the "minimum security" luncheon and announced to Judge Susan Whitman who passed sentence. Several couldn't make bail and Whitman ordered them to the bread and water table while those who paid their fines were given a glass of wine and a free massage. All the prisoners and donors then enjoyed a luncheon buffet. Equal justice for all.

Friends and associates of each "prisoner" raised bail by donating $250 to the March of Dimes. Proceeds, totalling nearly $10,000, will be used by the March of Dimes in their research, community service, advocacy and educational efforts to prevent birth defects and low birthweight.

More for the money

People say the arts always flourish in times of economic recession. The Carmel Music Society is taking these words to heart and staging a gala fund raiser to celebrate its 65th anniversary.

The date is Nov. 20, the place Highlands Inn. Black tie is optional for an evening that will include: "A Culinary Rhapsody" billed as a supper by bite (what's that, another word for horsd'oeuvres?), "Promenade Fantastique" fashion show of 90 pieces by American and European designers, a drawing of approximately $15,000 in prizes and the "Disco Bacchanale Finale," dancing under the stars in the California Market.

In this social season price war of fund raisers, this sounds like a bargain at $150 per. For more information contact Dennis Mills or Claire Kenney at Highlands Inn at 624-3801, ext. 120.

Travel Tip

The Ritz Carlton, San Francisco is pouring afternoon tea and presenting this season's fall fashions every Tuesday in the Lobby Lounge. Nickel rides highlight MST's centennial celebration

ONE HUNDRED years ago, the rhythm of horse hoofs and trolley bells rang in a new era for Monterey County. A narrow-gauge trolley car drawn by a single horse carried passengers from the majestic Hotel Del Monte (now the Naval Post Graduate School), through downtown Monterey and onward to the resort town of Pacific Grove, thereby introducing public transportation to the local scene.

This month, Monterey-Salinas Transit celebrates 100 years of public transportation with a series of special events to coincide with the annual Rideshare week, Sept. 23 to 27.

Highlighting the festivities will be a one-day return of yesteryear's 5 cent per zone transit fare. The "Roll Back the Fare" event will be held Wednesday, Sept. 25, and the only-a-nickel ride will be good on any MST route, in any zone.

On the same day, MST will hold an Open House at its Monterey headquarters located at 1 Ryan Ranch Road from array of activities including an eye-opening tour of the MST facilities. On display will be MST's fully restored 1948 motor coach, as well as local transit memorabilia. Visitors can also enjoy an entertaining and educational slide show on the history of transit in Monterey.

In conjunction with the Open House, a coloring contest will be held for Monterey County children, pre-school through eighth-grade. Kids are asked to draw a picture of what they feel public transportation will look like in another 100 years. Each participant receives two free tickets with MST, and a student from each grade level will be awarded a first-place prize consisting of two October 1991 passes in the zone of his or her choice. In addition, a Grand Prize winner receives a year's worth of free passes.

Entry forms can be obtained by calling MST. The artwork will be on display at the Open House. A number of dignitaries will attend the event. Eric C. Hanson, a well known transit historian will be on hand to autograph copies of his book, The Monterey & Pacific Grove Street Railway. This fascinating book presents an in-depth chronology of public transit in Monterey County, including a wealth of historic photographs. Awards recently garnered by MST from the California state senate and assembly will be announced. MST will also announce the award it recently received from the American Public Transit Association in recognition of its outstanding Centennial Riders' Guide.

Pretty Foxy

On the Monterey Peninsula, everywhere you look the beauty of nature is looking back. To keep it that way, we must preserve our natural resources. That's why we ask that you reduce your water use by 10%.

A few simple tricks can make all the difference. Install low-flow shower heads. Put in a drip irrigation system. Replace outdated plumbing fixtures with new water saving models like the 1.6 gallon-per-flush toilet.

Without any great sacrifices, you can save up to 75 gallons per day. Pretty foxy, eh?

Every fall the local club of Quota honors a "woman of the year" who has exhibited outstanding service to the community and has strived for the betterment of the citizens of the Monterey Peninsula. Last year's recipient was Artie Early.

Quota International is a nonprofit, nonpartisan, nonsectarian classified service organization of executives and professionals who are dedicated to the service of country and community. Its special focus is service to persons with hearing and speech handicaps.

Nominations for this year's Woman of the Year should be sent to: P.O. Box 2083, Monterey, CA 93942 and should be received no later than Oct. 1. A resume of the candidate should be included, along with a contact phone number for the sponsor.

LOCAL VINEYARD SWEEPS MAJOR WHITE WINE CATEGORIES IN L.A. FAIR COMPETITION

Ventana Vineyards, a pioneer in Monterey County wine and a recognized leader in California viticulture has taken top honors and received special recognition at the recent international wine judging and competition that takes place each year as part of the Los Angeles County Fair.

A Gold Medal and Best of Class award went to their 1990 Sauvignon Blanc. It was then judged against all other Best of Class white wine winners and was awarded the coveted Sweepstakes Award as the finest white wine in this year's competition.

Additionally, the 1990 Ventana Dry Johannisberg Riesling received the only Gold Medal awarded this year to a varietal wine of its type. It is only the second year that the vineyard has produced a dry riesling, and the second consecutive year for Gold Medal recognition.

Known for its production of Chardonnay, the local vineyard was tied with others for top honors for their non-barrel fermented version of this wine. Ventana grapes, grown in central Monterey County, also brought multiple awards to wines produced and bottled by other wineries. Recognition for Ventana Vineyards continues to focus world attention on the viticulture capabilities of Central California, particularly those of Monterey County.

Known as the grandfather of all competitions, the L.A. County Fair represents the longest running commercial wine judging in America. It began in 1935. Last year, the decision was made to expand the competitive base beyond the geographic realm of California. Now known as "Wines of the Americas," the competition in Los Angeles has expanded to include all wines produced on the North and South American continents.

GLOBAL CONSERVATION TO BE DISCUSSED AT WORLD AFFAIRS COUNCIL MEETING

Today, more than any time in human history, we risk the loss of species and inhabitants. Pollution by industrial societies that is poisoning the environment will be the subject to be presented by Richard Block at the World Affairs Council luncheon meeting on September 26. Mr. Block is the World Wildlife Fund's (WWF) Director of Public Programs and serves as WWF's liaison with zoos and aquariums. The Conservation Foundation, created over forty years ago, brought objective, interdisciplinary analysis to a broad range of environmental issues. The WWF, founded in 1961, focused on protecting endangered and biologically significant habitats. The two organizations officially merged in 1990 with the unified mission to become more deeply involved in socioeconomic issues, addressing the human context in which species and habitats must survive. In his presentation, Mr. Block will examine how two to three percent of the

California Earthquake Preparedness Steps to Take

When an earthquake strikes

Duck, Cover and Hold

Whether you are in your home, a school classroom, a high-rise or another type of building, it is important to know how to protect yourself during an earthquake. Practice what to do during an earthquake and teach yourself and your family members to react automatically when the shaking starts. If you are outdoors when the shaking starts, get into an open area away from trees, buildings, walls and power lines. If you are indoors, follow the steps below:

DUCK
DUCK or drop down to the floor.

COVER

Take COVER under a sturdy desk, table or other furniture. If that is not possible, seek COVER against an interior wall and protect your head and neck with your arms. Avoid danger spots near windows, hanging objects, mirrors or tall furniture.

HOLD

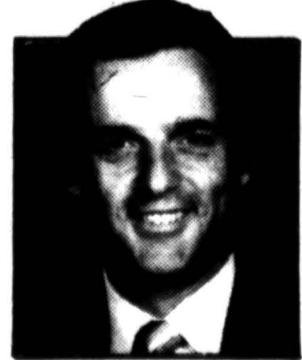

If you take cover under a sturdy piece of furniture, HOLD on to it and be prepared to move with it. HOLD the position until the ground stops shaking and it is safe to move.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION AND HEARING FOR RIGHT TO ATTACH ORDER; ORDER FOR ISSUANCE OF WRIT OF ATTACHMENT

CASE NO. DC91234351
ATTORNEY OR PARTY WITHOUT ATTORNEY, RICHARD K. ABDALAH, ESQ. (408) 252-5211, JACKSON, MacALISTER & ABDALAH, 10455 Torre Avenue, Cupertino, CA 95014.
ATTORNEYS FOR PLAINTIFFS.
MUNICIPAL COURT, SANTA CLARA COUNTY, 1095 Homestead Road, Santa Clara, CA 95050. Santa Clara Facility.

PLAINTIFF: Edward L. Chang, et. al.

DEFENDANT: Thomas Barrett, II, et. al.

Notice to defendant DIANE J. HOBACK aka DIANE J. DELONG. Plaintiff has filed an application for a right to attach order and writ of attachment.

A hearing on plaintiff's application will be held in this court as follows: Sept. 27, 1991 at 9:00 a.m. dept. 36.

You are notified that a right to attach order will be issued if the court finds that plaintiff's claim is probably valid and the other requirements for issuing the order are established. This hearing is not for the purpose of determining whether the claim is actually valid. Determination of the actual validity of the claim will be made in subsequent proceedings in the action and will not be affected by the decision at the hearing on the application for the order.

If you desire to oppose the issuance of a right to attach order to object to the amount to be secured by the attachment as provided in CCP 484.015, you must file with this court and serve on plaintiff (no later than five days prior to the date set for hearing in item 3) a notice of opposition and supporting affidavit as required by CCP 484.060.

If right to attach order is or has been issued, a writ of attachment will be issued to attach your property described in plaintiff's application unless the court determines that the property is exempt from attachment or that its value clearly exceeds the amount necessary to satisfy the amount to be secured by the attachment. However, since the right to attach order will not necessarily be limited to your property described in plaintiff's application, a writ of attachment may later be issued to attach over nonexempt property of yours.

If you claim that all or some portion of the property described in plaintiff's application is exempt from attachment, you must no later than five days prior to this hearing include your claim of exemption in your notice of opposition filed and served pursuant to CCP 484.060 or file and serve a separate claim of exemption with respect to the property as provided in CCP 484.080, and file with the court and serve on plaintiff a claim of exemption with respect to the property as provided in CCP 484.350.

If you fail to make a claim about personal property, or make a claim about real or personal property, but fail to prove that the property is exempt, any further claim of exemption to the property will be barred unless you show a change in circumstances occurring after expiration of the time for claiming exemptions.

Claims of exemption resulting from a change of circumstances, whether after denial of a previous claim or expiration of the time for claiming exemptions, may be asserted as provided in CCP 482.100.

You may obtain a determination at the hearing whether property not described in the application is exempt from attachment. Your failure to claim that property not described in the application is exempt from attachment will not preclude you from making a claim of exemption with respect to the property at a later time.

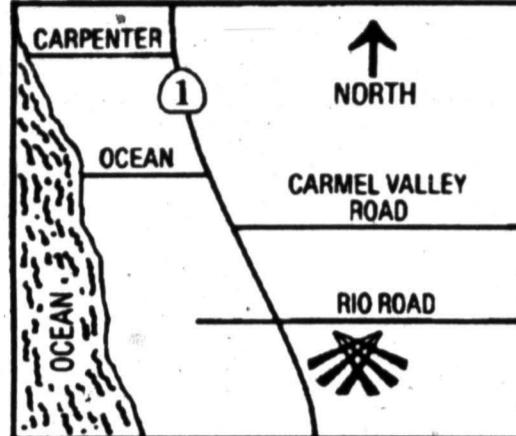

You may also obtain a determination at the hearing whether the amount sought to be secured by the attachment shall be reduced by the (1) the amount of any money judgement in your favor and against plaintiff that remains unsatisfied and enforceable, (2) the amount of any indebtedness of the plaintiff that you have claimed in a cross-complaint filed in the action if your claim is one upon which an attachment could be issued, or

(3) the amount of any claim asserted by you as a defense in the answer pursuant to CCP 431.70 if the claim is one upon which an attachment could be issued has an action been brought on the claim when it was not barred by the statute of limitations.

Either you or your attorney or both of you may be present at the hearing.

You may seek the advice of an attorney as to any matter connected with plaintiff's application. The attorney should be consulted promptly so that the attorney may assist you before the time set for hearing.

Plein air painters featured at opening of PG Art Center show

THE PACIFIC Grove Art Center continues their current year of exhibitions with an opening reception for artists, members and friends Friday, Sept. 20 from 7 to 9 p.m.

Joanna Chapman, president of the Pacific Grove Art Center, along with Johnny Apodaca a plein air painter and member of the Art Center Board have assembled an exhibition of plein air paintings by Monterey Peninsula artists.

In the David Henry Gill Gallery, exhibited will be a collection of classic art mainly from the period past the turn of the century through the 1940's, a time when regional art in California was in a particularly powerful phase.

Works presented in the Gill Gallery will include paintings by Armin Hansen, William Ritschel, Charles Dickman, Paul Dougherty, Maurice Graun, Howard Smith and Thomas McGlynn. Many of the paintings in this group have been published in art books of the period. Many of the compositions portray scenery and landmarks of the Central Coast that remain unchanged and that are still being painted by the plein air painters today.

In the Elmarie Dike Gallery and Hall Galleries the art center will present a collection of the works of present-day plein air painters who currently live and work on the Monterey Peninsula. Exhibited in this group are many familiar names, including Joe Nordmann, Jane Goode, Sam Colburn, Joy Hannah and Gerald Wasserman.

Featured in the Photography Gallery will be the sculpture of Betty Rees-Heredia and the photography of John McCleary. Betty Rees-Heredia, a 101:41 resident, who exhibited sculpture in bronze, wood, marble, clay, cement/glass and handmade paper. Photographer John McCleary, who lived on the Monterey Peninsula from 1951 to 1985, presently owns and is creative director of an advertising agency in Fresno, California.

Screening of 'Iron and Silk' will benefit MIIS scholarship program

TWO SCREENINGS of the highly acclaimed film Iron and Silk, produced and directed by Chinese filmmaker Shirley Sun, will benefit the Chinese Scholarship Program at Monterey Institute of International Studies.

The film will be shown at 1:30 and 3:30 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 22 at the Presidio Post Theatre, inside the High Street entrance to the Presidio of Monterey.

Tickets may be purchased only in advance at the Monterey Institute administration building, 425 Van Buren, for a suggested donation of $10, general admission, and $5, students. A lucky few early-birds will enjoy meeting Sun at a small reception in her honor. Please call Virginia Dobel at the Institute for more information: 647-4105.

Iron and Silk is based on an autobiographical novel by Mark Salzman, who collaborated with Sun on the screenplay. Salzman, an American kung fu addict, achieves his childhood dream of studying the martial arts in China by taking a job in mainland China teaching English at a small college.

It is not, however, a typical martial arts film. A Washington Post review noted that "This modest charmer, a true sleeper, is by no means a kung fu flick. It's a funny, lyrical vision of captivating and confusing China as seen through a Westerner's eyes."

Cultural council seeks names for distinguished patrons award

THE MONTEREY County Cultural Council called for nominations of the arts organizations in maintaining and most distinguished patrons and benefactors of the arts in Monterey County.

At a meeting with arts organizations from throughout Monterey County, Executive Director David Cloutier asked representatives from the performing, literary and visual arts to nominate businesses, foundations and individuals who they feel should be recognized as exceptional benefactors of the arts.

The Monterey County Cultural Council (MCCC) will honor those selected from the field of nominees at their first annual Distinguished Benefactors of the Arts Award Night and Dinner to be held on Nov. 15 at the Inn at Spanish Bay.

The black-tie affair will be the culmination of a two-month search for the county's most supportive patrons of the arts, a search that began with Sept. 10 meeting. According to Cloutier, in inaugurating and presenting the awards, the MCCC "seeks to recognize those who provide outstanding and noteworthy support of the arts in Monterey County through their monetary contributions, inspiring leadership, or through endowments, capital improvements or development campaign assistance."

All arts organizations in Monterey County are encouraged to nominate any business, foundation or individual which/who met the above criteria during, or culminating in, the past year, 1990-1991.

From the pool of nominees, finalists will be selected by the MCCC and honored at the awards night in November. MCCC President John Totten explains, "through these awards, it is the hope of the Cultural Council to demonstrate the gratitude and appreciation of the entire community for philanthropic endeavors on behalf of the cultural arts. It also wishes, by public encouraging this life-giving support for the years to come."

Since 1982 the MCCC has served as the county's local partner to the California Arts Council. Through facilitation, advocacy and education, this private, not-for-profit organization supports arts in the Monterey County and administers the granting of county funds set aside for culture.

For more information on the Distinguished Benefactors of the Arts Awards, including eligibility, the nomination procedure, or for more information on the Monterey County Cultural Council, please call: 424-3043.

Deadline to apply for cultural arts grants fast approaching

THE MONTEREY County Cultural Council announces the availability of monies through a special category: Multi-Cultural Arts Programs.

Grants will be awarded for a specific arts program or series of arts programs rooted in the expressions of a single culture or for programs that involve the ethnic-based expressions of many cultures.

Proposals are encouraged from emerging arts groups and community organizations. All arts programs need the formal sponsorship of a nonprofit organization. In some instances, arts groups who do not possess formal nonprofit status may apply through a sponsoring nonprofit organization.

Projects must primarily serve Monterey County residents and take place during 1992. No awards will be made to individuals.

Sept. 20, 1991 is the deadline for completed applications.

Further information, applications, and assistance in developing proposals may be obtained by writing to the Monterey County Cultural Council, P.O. Box 246, Salinas, CA 93902 or by calling 424-3043.

Host families sought for teachers from Down Under

FAMILIES IN our area are needed to host Australian and New Zealand teachers, school administrators and librarians for an 11-day period during Jan. 1992, according to the American Host Foundation.

Now in its 28th year, American Host has opened doors to better understanding for more than 16,000 overseas teachers and librarians who have shared their new understanding of the United States with students, colleagues and friends when they returned to their homelands.

Being a host family is open to anyone who has the desire to help increase international friendship and understanding. A host family provides a private room and meals for their guests and gives the opportunity to meet friends and see the local sights and attractions.

A new concept that is being introduced to the program is the Extended Host Family. This simply means that the host family arranges with service clubs, church groups and others to share the experience and to serve as backup to the primary host family who makes the arrangements.

The American Host Foundation arranges transportation to and from overseas, but host families are asked to meet their guests upon arrival in their area.

Visitors and host families have the opportunity to correspond and become acquainted by mail a month prior to the visit.

American Host Foundation is the only nonprofit, nongovernmental program designed to show the American way of life to overseas teachers and librarians through pairing them with American families. The program is nonpolitical and nonsectarian.

Anyone interested in being a host family or learning more about the program should write to American Host Foundation, P.O. Box 803, Garden Grove, CA 92642.

CRITIC AT LARGE

Class acts

THE OPERATIVE word for this weekend's Monterey Jazz Festival Saturday afternoon blues show (Sept. 21) is "class," what with the appearances of headliners Charles (Merry Christmas, Baby), Brown and Tony Award-winner Ruth Brown.

The blues is often known for its raunchy, sexual grit and grind, but these two performers are class acts. The Main Stage show at the Monterey Fairgrounds also features Floyd Dixon with Port Barlow & the Full House Band, Jimmy McCracklin and the Linettes, Lowell Fulson and the Browns (no relation).

The Garden Stage lineup may be just as good (and open to Grounds Admission ticket holders not just season ticket holders), with Ron Thompson and Mark Naftalin kicking it off, followed by Bobby Murray Band featuring Freddie Hughes and Bobby Cochran; Blues Willie and the South Street Runners featuring Yolanda Briggs; Floyd Dixon (and Port Barlow and & Full House); Mark Naftalin Rhythm & Blues Revue with Ron Thompson, Bobbie Webb, Maurice Kemp, and Beverly Watson; Jimmy McCracklin & the Linettes; Lowell Fulson; Charles Brown; and the MJF House Quartet with guests: Darryl Rowe Trio and Kevin Gibbs.

Ticket info is at 373-3366. The festival, of course, is sold out, but Grounds Admission tickets will be available up to and including the day(s) of the event.

DR. LOCO'S Rockin' Jalapeno Band mixes hot licks and fiery salsa into its music. Catch them at

MORE UPCOMING events with a musical bent on the Monterey Peninsula and outlying areas:

• At Doc Ricketts' Lab on Cannery Row: Headlining shows the rest of the month: The Subdudes, who will play a no-cover, booked-at-the-last-minute show Saturday, Sept. 28, a rare occurrence at Doc's, where weekends are reserved for local bands. The Subdudes, out of Colorado by way of New Orleans, plays rootsy rock with a definite Louisiana swamp feeling. (This is a correction from 9-19 Monterey Peninsula Review, which was given erroneous information). Also: Dr. Loco and His Rockin' Jalapeno Band (Sept. 26); and Roy Rogers is slated to ride into town (the bluesman, not the cowboy), Oct. 10. Local bands playing in the next week include The New Champions, Sept. 18-19; The Cubes Sept. 20-21; Terry Hanck & the Soulrockers, Sept. 22-23; Backtrax, Sept. 24; and Lovers & Strangers, Sept. 25.

• Portofino has the irrepressible Dan Hicks and the Acoustic Warriors in for two shows, 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 19, with tickets at $12 in advance. This is a rare opportunity to see Hicks, who gained fame with his Hot Licks back in the '60s and '70s (remember I Scare Myself and Where's the Money? ?), in an intimate setting. The fliers describe the music as "acoustic swing jazz with a country lilt." Funguaranteed.

Jimmy's baby

AS READERS know by now, the 34th annual Monterey Jazz Festival opens Friday night (9/20) at the fairgrounds. Excitement's in the air, as usual, but this time there's some sadness at Fest Central. MJF honcho Jimmy Lyons faces his last year of real and familiar power.

When the 1991 event ends, so will Jimmy's term as general manager of this planet's oldest continuous jazz festival. His emotional adjustment's huge—he's the only GM the colorful bash ever has had.

Some months ago, this writer broke the story that MJF board members were about to hire a new general manager. Messages supporting Jimmy came from far and wide. In 1992, Lyons will get his desired 35th year by producing only the last arena show—Sunday night. Producing the rest: new leader Tim Jackson from Kuumbwa Jazz Center in Santa Cruz. The board's game plan says Tim will assume full command come 1993.

That's how matters stood when Jimmy gave an exclusive interview to your present commentator. We were seated in his fairgrounds office last week. Lyons put aside the media seating plan ("we have many more requests than ever before"), and spoke with consciously underplayed frankness. And, yes, the sadness.

"This (fest) is my baby," the 74-year-old Lyons said. "It's hard to say how I feel. I thought I'd have this going as long as I was around and able. I got local guys to put up the money for the first Monterey Jazz Festival. None of the original group's still alive—there's no one here to prop up that reality. So I spent my life doing this, and I feel like my baby has been stolen from me. I'm not happy, but the 34th festival is right in front of us. I don't want to scream."

And: "I'd always planned to do the 35th and then stay as long as my health permitted. I still feel that something could have been worked out—after all, the festival has made money every year. I followed my dream. No other festival has kept the utter commitment to straight-ahead acoustic jazz. I'm afraid there might be changes in booking so that this festival goes for fusion like all the others. How long will the third generation be enjoying the (acoustic mainstream)

SPECIAL MOMENTS—During last year's Monterey Jazz Festival, Dizzy Gillespie played a dressing room ballad for an audience of one. And Laurel Lyons, wife

Jazz for which Monterey is famous?"

Lyons revealed that Dave Brubeck has whittled his 1992 schedule so that Dave can guarantee participation in Jimmy's last MJF hurrah. Then Jimmy quoted Dave's letter this way: "We started together, and should end your reign together."

Since he's extremely popular in Japan and has taken MJF troupes there over many summers, was there any chance that Jimmy would create a new festival for Japanese interests? "I would hope so," Lyons said. "We have many Japanese friends who are supportive of anything I do. But it's difficult to discuss the future. We want to make this one (MJF 1991) come off well. I'll keep calm—"

Jimmy Lyons rose from his executive chair and walked out onto the nearby back porch. "He can talk about it for only so long," wife Laurel said softly.

THE BOARD'S perspective was expressed via a cover letter and internal documentation sent to this column by MJF President Doc Etienne. "The entire Board wants you to know that your retirement has been a matter of real concern to everyone," said a message to Jimmy dated Jan. 16 of last year, "especially in view of the fact that your health has been on occasion precarious for the past several years. The Board desires to provide for a smooth transition to a new General Managership in the of MJF honcho Jimmy, obviously was moved. Both will be back for the 34th annual fest's opening on Friday night. (Bruce Talaman photo.)

future. The Board desires that to occur in a friendly, amicable way."

The same packet noted "increased contributions to Jimmy's retirement fund (figures whited out)," the retirement title of Manager Emeritus, a request that he continue accompanying the High School All-Stars to Japan each year.

Doc's cover letter said: ". . . (D)iscussions with Jimmy on retirement began in mid-1989. A committee was formed from the Board to meet with Jimmy, final arrangements were concluded in December of 1989, and a letter dated January 16 (of last year) was delivered to Jimmy by (board member and former presy) Howard Bucquet at his apartment in San Francisco. Howard discussed the contents of the letter at that time with Jimmy and Laurel."

It was unclear, either from the documents or pertinent talks with main players, whether Jimmy ever really agreed to the process. Since he insisted last week that the spotlight turn to this year's fest, that question must be asked at a later date.

A FEW arena tickets still may be available (373-3366). KUSP-FM and KRML-AM both will pipe into KJAZ Radio's exclusive full-fest feed and broadcast proceedings regionally. The main stage lineups:

Diane Schuur, Modern Jazz Quartet, Paquito D'Rivera and his New Band, Dizzy Gillespie (always at large wherever he goes).

Saturday night — Shorty Rogers and Bud Shank with the Lighthouse All-Stars featuring Conte Candoli, Bob Cooper, Bill Perkins, Pete Jolly, Larance Marable. Eiji Kitamura Quartet with Buddy DeFranco, Jon Hendricks and Company, Clayton-Hamilton Jazz Orchestra.

Sunday afternoon — Winners of the annual student competition. El Cerrito High Big Band, Berkeley High Combo, Folsom High Jazz Choir, High School All-Stars, Chick Corea Akoustic Band plus "other special guests."

Sunday night — Swedish stars like Arne Domnerus and Putte Wickman working with Sweets Edison "and friends." Carol Sloane, Phil Woods Quintet, Count Basie Orchestra.

Grounds Admission tickets cost $15 per (Friday) and $20 (Saturday and Sunday) at the gate. The full Garden Stage and Night Club talent roster was offered here recently on a clip-and-save basis. You can count on some bright sets: MJF All-Stars, Helcio Milito and Weber Drummond, Eddie Marshall Quintet, Bobbe Norris with Larry Dunlap, knockout blues show, Madeline Eastman, Mel Martin with Bebop and Beyond, Ann Dyer, Swing Ace Big Band from Japan, Dobson Family, Margie Baker, so on.

The concluding Sunday Night Club set will be a Sax Summit with Jack Nimitz, Harvey Wainapel, Scott Hamilton, Red Holloway, Herman Riley, Ali Ryerson and "friends from Sweden and Japan."

THERE WILL be quite a special blast of post-festival jazz. On Monday evening in the Grand Ballroom of Monterey Marriott (formerly the Sheraton), clarinet star Eiji Kitamura will front his quintet at a benefit sponsored by the local International Disabled Exchange Adventures (IDEA) in association with Youth Music Monterey.

Eiji's called the Benny Goodman of Japan; he'll be joined then (9/23) by Jazz Fest musical director Bill Berry on trumpet, Jackie Coon's flugelhorn, guitarist Bruce Forman. Starts at seven o'clock. Door charge of $15 per. Call Abinante Music (375-5893) for ticket info.

The offering came out of a dream nurtured by Sumiko Inoue, teaching assistant at Pacific Grove's Gateway Center. She hopes the money raised can help kick off an exchange program for Japanese and Americans with physical handicaps — "to learn about programs that enhance the lives of the disabled in each country." IDEA's long-range goal, she says, "is to promote and facilitate cultural understanding as well as individual opportunities for disabled people."

Sumiko heard Kitamura at MJF. "I discovered him sitting in front of me, eating his lunch. I knew what I had to do. I introduced myself and told him I wanted to share his music with my clients. From that day on, my dream started to have some clear voices."

Many organizations have helped the concert come true. So has the excellent jazz writer Bill Minor, Sumiko's volunteer guide through the media maze.

KEYBOARD PRO Bobby Phillips pens this thumbnail review of Los Angeles pianist Milcho Leviev's two nights at Shanty Malone's in Valley Hills Center:

"Both evenings, Milcho opened with a solo recital showing his sweeping command of styles from nine-beats-to-a-measure Bulgarian Blues to a tender tribute for Frederic and Bill — Chopin and Evans. Jam time came; Milcho laid down a medium blues by Charlie Parker for bassist Terry Miller and drummer Pete Boorus. It took just one chorus to bring on a wide collective grin of musical recognition. The pianist kept up the heat the next evening with bassist Stuart Zimney and drummer John Goldsmith. Assisted by Ron Coolidge (trumpet) and Kenny Stahl (flute) along with Latin percussionist Macucho, they touched down at the end of a long Latin jam on Killer Joe. Killer dude, Milcho."

SIGHT BITES: San Jose Jazz Festival reports that August's second edition drew 35,000 fans.

• Don't forget that Monterey Peninsula Jazz Orchestra now plays Carmel Mission Inn on Monday nights. It's a $5 donation with price break on dinner there.

• Kuumbwa Center brings in great jazz vocalist Betty Carter on Monday night (9/23). Two shows — 7:30 and 9:30 — at $16.50 per person. Ticketmaster.

• Second Annual Jazz Extravaganza to benefit Pacific Coast Church will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday (9/19) at Pacific Grove's Robert Down School Auditorium.

Lucent poems

THE SUPERB poet Gary Elder comes back from a serious illness as I write these words. The man deserves some special note — simply because he has been doing it so well for so long. Both as wordsmith and publisher of beautiful small press items.

Originally from Oregon, Gary lives on California's Far North Coast (Shelter Cove). His voice has been formed by mountains, plains, sea surge, bear tracks, coyote barks, wind, snow, long hikes and camps, hardy pioneer and Native American and cowboy myths.

At the same time, he has known the cities and published important pieces of jazz criticism. This background gives him a lyric line that works very well at varying lengths (think 1960s ballad treatments by Sonny Rollins) and expresses the pain part of intense vision as well as anyone from our generation.

For openers, Dustbooks brought out the latest edition of Elder's epic poem entitled Arnulf'saga (85 pages and $2.95 in paperback or $6.95 cloth bound). I today can do no better than I did in an essay that was printed as part of a poetry collection 10 years ago: "His power book is a structure of transformation — through Kali to virginal grace — for anyone who'll seize upon that Travel Guide. Diane Di Prima's Loba book and Arnulf'saga are what the children should be reading to point out this culture's transformative reality of 1970-76."

San Marcos Press of New Mexico published Gary's Eyes on the Land (32-page paperback at $3). These luculent poems celebrate the North American wilderness along with joys and heart breakage that come from human relations. One small example of that music:

the four hawks lifted in family spreading russet mantles over deep New Mexican air
kiering down
at the two who followed the laughing dogs

To obtain Gary Elder's truly valuable books, drop him a line. It's: 95 Carson Court (Shelter Cove), Whitethorn CA, 95489.

THE FOLLOWING lines by Pacific Grove poet Mahesh somehow seem to fit beautifully right here (I suspect he and Gary Elder would be good pals if ever they met):

ILL ALWAYS SEE YOUR FACE

Funny how people laugh at gurus and spiritual teachers these days, as if they were just more new age hype.
But You were here before any Age,
and You always made me laugh.
Even from as far away as another country or another time,

I can touch You with a lover's touch.
You make the Kama Sutra seem like a toy.
What is the secret of Your sensuality, that You can take me from passion to pure bliss?
You are the Lotus,
and I know Your beauty.
You are where I sleep and where I awake, and I'll always see Your face.

FOGHORN PRESS (San Francisco) has contracted outstanding Carmel Valley writer Ray March, whose travel columns run in this journal, to author its 1992 edition of California Golf with a release date December 1991.

Ray publishes nationally and often focuses on golf profiles and color coverage at various California tournaments and courses. Says Foghorn President Vicki Morgan: "We're excited to have Ray on board. He has the expertise we want for this book."

The 1992 edition will feature more than 700 golf courses — complete descriptions, locations, fees, play policies. Women golfers will appreciate the sections on women's yardage and ratings.

WRITER CYNTHIA Fowler has just kicked off a new course at Hartnell College — Shaping Our Lives: Women in the World (Personal Essay Writing). It's held from 6:30-9:30 Tuesday evenings through Oct. 22. Call 755-6800 for registration data.

"Come discover a part of who you are in a loving and supportive environment of women working toward a common goal," says Cynthia. "Each session will emphasize a different area of your life and a different writing skill. You will leave this course with a completed essay."

Coastal clean-up day scheduled for Sept. 21

LUCKY STORES, the Cleanup's state-wide corporate sponsor, is also distributing a brochure with details for volunteers in each of its California stores at its environmental stations—where paper and plastic bags can be recycled.

Lucky shoppers will also receive Adopt-A-Beach car litter bags with information about the Cleanup in the weeks leading up to Sept. 21.

To focus attention on long-term solutions to the trash and litter problem, the Cleanup emphasizes recycling. Working with the state Department of Conservation, a major Cleanup co-sponsor, volunteers will separate debris they pick up into two sets of bags: one for trash and the other for recyclables. The cleanup bags are made of 100% recycled plastic.

This year's Cleanup has been extended to include the San Francisco Bay and Delta, parts of the Sacramento and American River systems, and Lake Tahoe—to emphasize that California's natural systems are interconnected and intertwined.

"The simple truth is that almost everything in California washes down to the sea. So when we recycle and stop litter in our own neighborhoods, that has a direct benefit on the health of the ocean," said Coastal Commission Chairman Gwyn.

Beyond the reward of knowing that they have helped restore California's beauty and environmental health, volunteers will receive an Adopt-A-Beach canvas shopping bag, provided by Lucky Stores, that they can use year 'round to help them reduce, reuse and recycle.

The Coastal Commission emphasizes the Cleanup effort doesn't stop on September 21. "This day is a way of getting people's attention and showing how easy it is to solve the problem if we all work together. Caring for the coast and our earth is something we can do every day," said Commission Chairman Gwyn.

Toward that end, the Coastal Commission offers six simple things to do to help save the coast this Labor Day weekend:

1. Leave your packaging at home. Bring your picnic in reusable containers.

2. Don't let your trash beat you to the beach. Any trash, anywhere, that is not disposed of properly can end up in the ocean.

3. Recycle! You not only stop litter, you save resources and energy (and reduce the risk of oil spills)—and get a nickel for every two beverage containers you return.

4. Cut up your six pack rings and properly dispose of them—they can be death traps for wildlife.

5. Repair any crankcase leaks and don't drain your engine oil onto the road or the ground—take it to a recycling center. An estimated 240 million gallons of oil (22 times the size of the Exxon Valdez spill) enters the sea each year from urban runoff in the U.S.

6. Drop by your local Lucky Store to find out how to join the Coastal Cleanup on Sept. 21 and the Coastal Commission's year 'round Adopt-A-Beach program.

THEATER REVIEW

By Joe Guzaitis

All-Star Shakespeare

GROVEMONT THEATER Outreach has opened Romeo and Juliet at the Forest Theater with some of the finest Peninsula talent, costumes, and sets available. Let's just say that I like this production a lot.

It's certainly a far cry from the laff-za-poppin' Comedy of Errors that assaulted our senses a few months ago. Well, the boffo bard has receded into oblivion and we have orthodoxy restored for the nonce. And what a restoration it is.

Lord Capulet is played by Ron Cohen whose fatherly tirade to Juliet on the matter of her marriage to Paris will grip parent and non parent alike, but the parent probably more. Cohen goes from fatherly to ferocious in a trice. His oaths and threats only harden Juliet's resistance, however. He gives a fine performance as the vengeful leader of his clan.

Lady Capulet is played by Jennifer Forbes, who sustains the family honor to the end. Julie Huggett plays their daughter Juliet, who sees what she wants and will not be deterred by ancestral restrictions. Huggett captures the squeal of delight of the first touch of young love as well as the guttural renunciation of her family and its demands. She gives us an excellent reading of the great range that the role represents.

Juliet's nurse is a juicy role that is much sought after by actresses. In this production, Marcia Gambrell Hovick — director of Children's Experimental Theater and Staff Players — makes a rare stage appearance and brings a depth and maturity to the role that does not weaken. The nurse's role is critical to many scenes, advancing the plot, bringing the messages. Hovick's dramatic substance made these scenes work well.

The Montagues are played by Ellis Albee as Lord Montague and his lady is Rene Farjeon. His son Romeo is John Farmanesh. Albee's noble demeanor always enriches the roles he plays and there's no exception here.

Farmanesh's Romeo is excellent, revealing a frisky, impetuous youth needing adversity to challenge his skill and finding it. He adds some nice bits of business to his role to bring it alive. He can scale a balcony or sweet talk Milady with nary a pause. The scenes with Juliet have the requisite chemistry and the two work very well together. He can also handle himself in the street with sword or smart remark.

Mercutio and Benvolio are a rare pair: Kevin Nolan Caston and Brian Huntington play these roles. These sword-wielding, verse-spouting delinquents keep the action moving (on their way to tragedy.) Both are well cast in these roles and have played similar roles in the past. The stage combat training is by Mark Shuler and good training it was. No one was skewered.

In supporting roles: Escalus is Prince of Verona and no better figure than Jerry Gill need be sought for this role. His diction, oratory and bearing are so majestic that, when he speaks, it makes you want to stand up and salute.

Friar Laurence is played by Mark Shilstone-Laurent, another case of a headliner playing a supporting role and giving it extra strength. Mark has appeared in numerous roles in many exceptional plays in the area. Finally, Jeff Hudelson as Peter, jester to the Capulets, who provides his special sense of whimsy and invention to bring this small part into amiable visibility. Jeanne Wooster provides music and song as a troubador. A nice touch withal. There are too many to recognize individually but suffice it to say that while all were good, some were superb.

The director is Stephen Moorer and his assistant is Dorian Ellis. They have done an excellent job overall with timing, emphasis, and use of space. They are to be commended on not yielding to the temptation of making substantial cuts and ruining the intricate structure of the play. The play runs full length.

Costumes are more sumptuous than I've seen in a long time. Rich brocades, fur, lace. They were all very plausible for the period. Capulet's rich robe and Mercutio's dapper outfit stood out. Peter the jester and Juliet's nurse, for example, had detail work in their costumes that spoke of the concern for quality. Lady Hull has outdone herself in this production.

The set was designed by Stephen Moorer and John Rousseau. It is nice to look at and cleverly functional. When lit in certain ways, it is even more pleasing to behold.

Get the program for the list of Fall offerings of the Grovemont Theater Outreach effort. There's Theater, Poetry and Music under the pines and the oaks between Sept. 13 and Oct. 13. (It's a pity, however, that the program is cluttered up with propaganda for the elitist theory that the Earl of Oxford (Edward de Vere), wrote the Shakespearean plays. (This is like saying that Arthur Miller or Tennessee Williams were not high-born enough therefore could not have achieved what they did.) I think we should get equal time for the Marlovians and Baconians, at least, then a response from the orthodox Stratford position. If controversy is to be courted, let's stir in all the factions. One-sided arguments quickly get tedious.)

Romeo and Juliet plays Thursday through Sunday evenings at 8 p.m., Sept. 11 to Oct. 12 in the Outdoor Forest Theater.

THE SAN FRANCISCO Blues Festival threw a birthday party for blues legend B.B. King Sunday and 12,000 people showed up to wish him well.

Actually they were there for the festival, of course, but also to see a legend. King, who turned 66 Monday, can almost be considered the father of modern blues-rock, having inspired countless musicians and bands, from the Rolling Stones to Eric Clapton, to today's young blues stars such as Robert Cray and Joe Louis Walker.

Cray, along with a multitude of music stars, including Bobbie McFerrin, Boz Scaggs, Narada Michael Walden, Paul Kantner, Angela Strehli, Otis Clay, Clarence Gatemouth Brown, Queen Ida, Rory Block and others, showed up backstage to help King celebrate. It was a festive mob scene unlike any others at the blues festival. Even SF Mayor Art Agnos showed up to give B.B. the key to the city. Festival goers were treated to Cray playing King's beloved guitar Lucille, and McFerrin, Scaggs and Walden providing background vocals on a birthday song, a high point for the two-day event, possibly (but we hope not), the last at the Great Meadow at Fort Mason.

BLUES LEGEND B.B. KING acknowledged well-wishers backstage on the eve of his 66th birthday at the San Francisco Blues Festival last weekend. King closed the show in style. (Mac McDonald photo.)
